

SEEQUR Exposes India's Hidden "Expert Gap"

When life's biggest decisions hang in the balance, access to the right experts shouldn't be this hard.

Gurgaon, Haryana Sep 13, 2025 (Issuewire.com) - India has thousands of trained psychologists, career coaches, academic mentors and relationship counsellors, yet most remain invisible to the people who need them. In India, nearly 150 million people require mental health support but 70 to 92 per cent do not receive treatment. Meanwhile, 40 per cent of students lack access to formal career counselling, and over 90 per cent of graduates struggle to find jobs that match their skills. Relationship guidance is also underserved, with rising divorce rates and low awareness of premarital counselling. Yet, millions of trained experts remain unseen and disconnected from those who need them most. SEEQUR, preparing to launch as India's first clarity platform, calls this the "Expert Gap".

The problem nobody talks about

Experts who dedicate years to their craft are still hidden from view. They:

- Lack professional digital profiles to showcase credibility
- Depend on referrals that rarely cross beyond a small circle
- Struggle with fragmented tools to manage bookings or track progress
- Have no single platform that respects both their craft and their clients

The SEEQUR approach

SEEQUR is building a two-sided solution:

- For experts: verified digital presence, appointment management, and national reach
- For seekers: stigma-free access to trusted professionals in mental wellness, relationships, academics, and careers

“We built technology for everything from food delivery to dating, but experts who change lives still lack a digital stage,” said Rishabh Singh, Founder of SEEQUR. “SEEQUR fixes that. If experts win, India wins. SEEQUR exists to make sure their knowledge actually reaches the people who need it.”

What's next

SEEQUR is preparing to invite its first group of “Founding Experts”, an inaugural group of professionals who will help reshape how India finds and trusts guidance. At the same time, the seeker waitlist remains open.

Join the early-access list: seequr.com

Media Contact

Priya Kapoor

@seequr.com

8787274148

Tower D 9th Floor, Uni Tech Cyber Park, Sector 39

Source : SEEQUR

See on IssueWire