

A Powerhouse Reunion Brings Luxury Home Organizing Back to Nashville

Nashville, Tennessee Nov 6, 2025 (IssueWire.com) - There's a new sense of calm coming to Music City—and it's beautifully labeled.

When The Home Edit took the world by storm with its rainbow-coded pantries, celebrity clients, and Netflix-level fame, it singlehandedly put home organizing onto the cultural map.

But it also built something else: a team of expert organizers who were among the best in the business.

Now, some of that dream team is reuniting under a new name, and with a refined mission.

Settled, the luxury New York City-based organizing firm founded by The Home Edit alums Pamela Meluskey and Larisa Bright in 2020, has just announced a major expansion into Nashville.

At the helm of the new headquarters are three powerhouse organizers who helped shape the golden era of modern organizing: Lauren Cicerchia, Emily Shreve, and Emily Walton.

The End of an Era, and the Start of Something New

While The Home Edit continues as a beloved brand, it put a pause on taking requests for in-home organizing services late last year. The shift left a noticeable gap in the market—and longtime and prospective clients, and fans asked: Who will carry the torch?

The answer has arrived in perfect order.

“This is about more than just growing a business,” says co-founder Pamela Meluskey. “This is a reunion of women who helped shape the organizing industry. We’re thrilled to bring Settled’s vision to Nashville with people we trust and admire.”

Guiding the expansion at a strategic level is Nicole Logan, Settled’s Director of Operations, who also previously led teams at The Home Edit.

A Natural Next Step in a City That Loves Style

Settled’s arrival in Nashville comes at the right time. With the city’s real estate and design markets booming, this expansion positions Settled to meet a growing demand for high-caliber home services.

“This isn’t just organizing,” says co-founder Larisa Bright. “It’s storytelling through space. And we couldn’t be more excited to write this next chapter in Nashville.”

Shreve, who worked alongside Bright, Meluskey, and Logan during their time at The Home Edit, adds: “It feels serendipitous. We’ve all grown so much professionally, and now we get to bring that energy and experience into something new.”

The New Standard for Organized Living

Settled's approach combines design-level aesthetics with deep functionality. Every project is fully customized, from the layout and product selection to the long-term systems that make maintenance feel effortless.

The Settled Nashville team specializes in:

- Whole-home and single-space organizing, with a bespoke design approach
- Luxury move management, from pre-move editing to full unpack and system setup
- Maintenance and refresh services, to help clients maintain long-term success
- Confidential, concierge-level service tailored to every lifestyle

Nashville may be the latest city to welcome Settled's signature style, but the team isn't new to high expectations. Between them, Cicerchia, Shreve, and Walton have worked in hundreds of homes across the country, serving clients that range from busy CEOs and new moms to major celebrities and athletes.

"People are craving ease in their homes," says Walton. "It's not about having less—it's about having what you need, in the right place, and knowing that it can stay that way."

In the age of Pinterest-perfect homes and constant lifestyle content, it can be easy to forget that organizing is about more than appearances. For the Settled team, it's about building systems that support people's real lives—whether that's a quiet morning routine, a recovery station for a pro athlete, or a kitchen that makes family dinners a joy.

And in Nashville, a city that continues to evolve while holding tight to its roots, that philosophy fits right in.

"We're here to create spaces that feel good every single day," says Cicerchia. "This is what we love to do. We're excited to continue doing it with people we admire, in a city we care deeply about, with a team that understands what luxury living should feel like."
