The ceremony was hosted by Gilmore Girls creator Amy Sherman-Palladino. It absolutely marked a heartfelt reunion for the cast and crew. Graham, who brought the witty and warm Lorelai Gilmore to life, was honored with the 2,823rd star on the famed boulevard. In the audience sat her on-screen mother, Kelly Bishop, who played the formidable Emily Gilmore. Along with her, there was Scott Patterson, the ever-charming Luke Danes, Lorelai's longtime love and Stars Hollow's favorite diner owner.

Matt Czuchry, known for playing Logan Huntzberger, Rory's complicated love interest, was also there to show support. Alongside them were several producers and writers from the show, turning the event into a true Gilmore Girls family affair. The original series ran from 2000 to 2007.
