

Greg DiNero Returns from Hiatus, Teams Up with Hip-Hop Heavyweights

Jersey City, New Jersey Oct 6, 2025 (IssueWire.com) - Acclaimed music producer Greg DiNero, born Gregory McLaughlin Jr., is officially back. After taking a brief hiatus from the spotlight, the 30-year-old New Jersey native is making serious noise in the industry once again—this time alongside some of hip-hop’s biggest names. With new collaborations underway with Young Thug, Gucci Mane, Bobby Shmurda, and Jack Harlow, DiNero is proving he’s not only back—he’s better than ever.

Greg DiNero first made waves in the music scene while still in high school, when he worked with viral rapper Stitches—a breakout moment that marked the beginning of a career built on raw talent, gritty beats, and an ear for the next big sound. Known for his versatility and a hard-hitting production style that blends trap with melodic textures, DiNero quickly built a name for himself as a go-to producer for emerging talent and industry legends alike.

Now, after stepping back to recalibrate and evolve his sound, DiNero returns with a renewed vision and a powerhouse lineup of collaborators. Industry insiders say his current work is some of his best yet, with unreleased records already generating major buzz behind the scenes.

“Sometimes you need to take a step back to level up,” says DiNero. “Now, I’m locked in. The music I’m working on right now feels like a new chapter—not just for me, but for the culture.”

When he's not in the studio crafting hits, Gregory McLaughlin Jr. is a dedicated father to three sons. A hands-on dad and active member of his community, he spends his free time coaching youth baseball and football, bringing the same passion and discipline he has for music into the world of youth sports.

Fans can expect major releases on the horizon, with several high-profile tracks currently in development and scheduled to drop in late 2025 and early 2026.
