Honorary Consul Prof. Dr. Eugenio Roberto Caligiuri presents an international initiative from Bucharest aimed at strengthening education, legal culture, and cross-border cooperation.

In an era where multilateral cooperation faces growing challenges, Prof. Dr. Eugenio Roberto Caligiuri, Honorary Consul of the Republic of Equatorial Guinea to Romania, has unveiled a new global vision through the International Diplomacy & Law Awareness Program — an academic and humanitarian project promoting a renewed culture of legality, dialogue, and peacebuilding.

The program establishes a collaborative framework connecting universities, diplomatic institutions, and civil-society organizations to exchange expertise and develop leadership skills in the fields of international law and diplomatic practice. It also supports training sessions, policy discussions, and intergovernmental partnerships that reinforce respect for the rule of law as a foundation for international cooperation.

“Diplomacy and legal understanding are not just professional tools; they are instruments of peace and mutual respect among nations,” said Prof. Caligiuri. “This initiative seeks to bring those values closer to the next generation of global leaders.”

A participant in the First World Conference on Human Rights (Vienna, 1993) representing the International Parliament for Safety and Peace, Prof. Caligiuri has spent over three decades advising governments, NGOs, and international bodies across Europe, Latin America, Africa, and the Middle East. His expertise in diplomatic and consular law, international relations, and humanitarian cooperation continues to guide policy-oriented dialogue at institutional and academic levels.

His academic achievements include MB.BS (Hons), JD (Law), MA (International Relations), PhD (International Law), MBA, and a Specialist Diploma in International Protocol. Recognized for his dedication to ethical governance and cross-cultural understanding, he has been honored with Hijo Benemérito de Guinea Ecuatorial (2005), Ciudadano Benemérito de Honor de Buenos Aires (2013), and Ciudadano de Honor de Cartagena de Indias, Colombia (2016).

The International Diplomacy & Law Awareness Program is now preparing its first series of thematic sessions and policy briefings to be hosted in partnership with academic and diplomatic institutions. The program’s long-term goal is to enhance public understanding of diplomacy and law as essential components of a peaceful international order.

This new initiative reinforces Prof. Caligiuri’s ongoing mission to promote global dialogue and humanistic values through education, legal literacy, and cooperation — creating bridges between cultures and nations through the enduring principles of law and diplomacy.
