Solay39, a groundbreaking blockchain security startup, has officially launched its AI-driven smart contract audit platform, offering real-time protection and vulnerability detection for just $120 per audit.

Solay39 combines machine learning, Slither analysis, and economic attack simulations to identify critical flaws in smart contracts — including flash loan exploits, reentrancy bugs, and price manipulation vectors. Unlike traditional audit firms that charge thousands and take weeks, Solay39 delivers instant results with 24/7 blockchain monitoring and active defense mechanisms.

“We believe security should be fast, affordable, and intelligent,” says Francesco Lippo, creator of Solay39. “Our platform empowers Web3 developers to launch safely without waiting weeks or spending a fortune.”

Key Features:

- AI-powered audit engine with Slither and ML
- Simulated attacks: flash loans, MEV, oracle manipulation
- Real-time defense against known exploit patterns
- Instant launch via Coinbase Commerce
- Supports Ethereum, BSC, Polygon, Arbitrum

Solay39 is ideal for DeFi protocols, NFT platforms, and Web3 startups seeking fast and reliable security without the overhead of manual audits. The platform is live at www.solay39.eu, with a streamlined onboarding process and transparent pricing.

About Solay39

Founded in Italy, Solay39 is redefining smart contract security through automation, AI, and continuous protection. Its mission is to democratize blockchain safety and make audits accessible to every developer.
