of the globe.

In an age crowded with countless spiritual influencers, authenticity has become rare. Amid this noise, Swami Krishnanand Ji's podcast stands apart for its purity, simplicity, and truth, offering listeners the real essence of Sanatan Dharma—the eternal connection between Gau Mata and Param Pujya Shri Ramdoot Hanumanlal Ji Maharaj (Prabhu Hanuman Ji)

This global spiritual movement was initiated by Kush Bhargava, an Indian-born, New Zealand-based Gau Sevak, environmentalist, author, and founder of the New Zealand-based political party Protect & Prosper NZ (PPNZ), who shared:

“Swami Ji embodies the Sanatan ideal—living exactly what he teaches. His words carry the power of truth, not performance.”

Swami Krishnanand Ji's life reflects true saintliness—a living embodiment of humility, devotion, and selfless service. He lives a life of simplicity and discipline—residing in a small room coated with natural cow dung and travelling in a humble old jeep, away from luxury and comfort, devoted entirely to the service of Gau Mata and Param Pujniya Shri Ramdoot Hanumanlal Ji Maharaj (Prabhu Hanuman Ji). Free from material desires and worldly attachments, Swami Ji constantly teaches that true spirituality lies in seva (service), simplicity, and surrender to God, inspiring others to live with compassion, purity, and purpose.

Hanumanlal Ji Maharaj (Prabhu Hanuman Ji) and Param Pujniya Swami Krishnanand Ji Maharaj “Bhuri Wale,” in collaboration with the Gau Sewa Mission, is working to transform India’s traditional cow shelters into self-sufficient Vedic Centres of Dharma, sustainability, and science. This visionary initiative combines New Zealand and global innovation with Vedic wisdom to create the world’s first Tech-Vedic Gaushala—a pioneering fusion of A2 cow research, Vedic knowledge, Vaastu architecture, and Ayurveda.

Each Gaushala will function as a living ecosystem, powered by cow-based renewable energy, Ayurvedic research, organic farming, and rural entrepreneurship—a model where spirituality and sustainability walk hand in hand.
