Tampa Drain Cleaning FAQ

1. What causes frequent clogs in Tampa homes?

Many Tampa homes, especially older properties in neighborhoods like Seminole Heights and South Tampa, use outdated cast iron or Orangeburg sewer lines that are prone to corrosion and tree root invasion. In kitchens, grease and food particles are the most common causes of blockages. In bathrooms, hair and soap scum often build up in the drains over time.

2. What is the difference between snaking and hydro jetting?

Drain snaking, or drain cabling, involves using a rotating cable to break through clogs and restore water flow. Hydro jetting, on the other hand, uses high-pressure water to scour the inside the pipes, removing grease, sludge, and scale buildup. Hydro jetting is recommended for deep or recurring blockages, especially in commercial kitchens or homes with heavy usage.

3. How can I prevent future clogs?

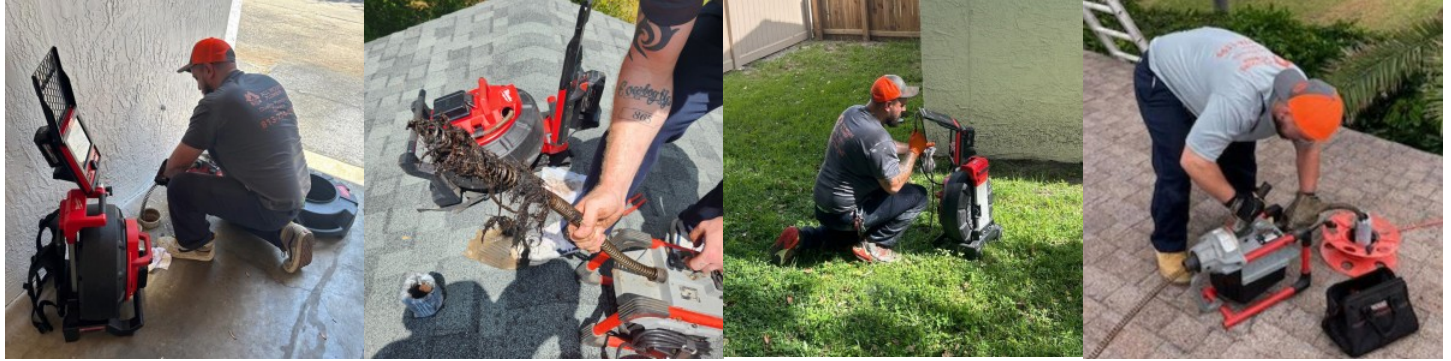

Avoid pouring grease down the drain, install hair catchers in bathroom sinks and tubs, and consider annual drain maintenance from a professional plumber. All Hours Plumber offers preventative drain cleaning services and video inspections to help identify problems early, before they turn into major backups.
