

America Down: A Post-Apocalyptic Story of Loss, Resilience, and Teen Mental Health

The background of the poster is a photograph of a man in a white t-shirt and jeans walking away from the camera across a grassy field. In the background, there is a dense line of green trees and a utility pole with a transformer. Two birds are flying in the sky above the trees.

AMERICA DOWN

A Post-Apocalyptic Feature Film

NOW CROWDFUNDING
ON

INDIEGOGO

East Haven, Connecticut Nov 3, 2025 (IssueWire.com) - In a world where over 99 percent of humanity has vanished, one teenage boy searches for meaning in the silence left behind. America Down, an upcoming post-apocalyptic feature film starring Jamie Harmon, tells a hauntingly human story about grief, resilience, and finding purpose when the world falls apart. Unlike typical tales filled with zombies or monsters, America Down is grounded in emotion and truth. It explores the quiet loneliness of survival and the fragile hope that pushes us forward when everything familiar has disappeared.

Through Jamie's eyes, audiences will experience moments of despair and courage that mirror the struggles of real-world teens facing mental health challenges and loss. In May 2025, a passionate 19-person crew set out to prove what independent filmmaking can achieve. With a micro-budget of just $7,000, they transformed Connecticut town squares into haunting post apocalyptic landscapes, filmed daring fight scenes across rivers and lakes, and secured music from legendary artist Gordon Lightfoot. The result was a six-minute proof-of-concept short that stunned early viewers, showing that creativity and heart can outshine even the biggest budgets.

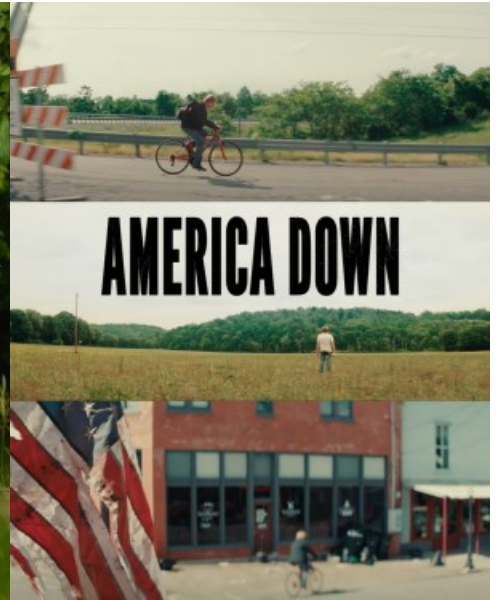

The project also carries the mark of rising industry talent William Atticus Parker, the film's producer and casting director. Parker recently made headlines for his 2025 independent film Atrabilious, starring Jeffrey Wright, Alec Baldwin, Mark Boone Junior, and Whoopi Goldberg, which was acquired by Buffalo 8 for a late 2025 release. Known for bringing A-list talent to independent features, Parker's involvement signals serious momentum for America Down and its growing potential for major studio interest.

Also attached to the project is actor and producer Lucas Harmon, who portrays the lead role in America Down. Together, the team brings both artistic integrity and cinematic ambition to a story that touches deeply on the human experience. Now, the filmmakers are turning to the public for support through an upcoming Indiegogo crowdfunding campaign. The goal is to expand this proof of concept into a full-length feature, shooting across Connecticut and Nashville in May 2026. Every contribution brings the project one step closer to shining a light on teenage mental health, isolation, and hope, themes that resonate now more than ever.

For this small but determined team, America Down is not just a film. It is proof that independent creators with a shared vision and relentless spirit can create something truly powerful. The hope is to move audiences worldwide and secure broader distribution, whether in theaters or on streaming platforms. Supporters are invited to join this journey, helping turn a raw, emotional vision into a story that stays with you long after the credits roll. For interviews, press materials, or more information about America Down, please contact the production team directly.

CAMPAIGN LINK: America Down: A Post-Apocalyptic Feature Film by Lucas Harmon - Indiegogo

INSTAGRAM: America Down \(@america.down\) • Instagram photos and videos

Media Contact

Amos John

@gmail.com

Source : last one standing film

See on IssueWire