New Developments 2024 and 2025

Procter & Gamble Company (P&G)

P&G's third-quarter 2025 results showed a modest organic sales and diluted EPS growth despite a "challenging and volatile" consumer environment. This indicates continued, albeit slow, growth in its core product categories, including baby care.

Johnson & Johnson

J&J's Q2 2025 results were strong, but the company's baby products division remained in the news primarily due to a rejected bankruptcy filing and an $8 billion settlement proposal aimed at resolving talc-related lawsuits. New lawsuits continued to be filed throughout 2025, highlighting the significant legal and financial pressures on this segment of their business.
