

Dr. Rimah Sharief: Recognized as a Leading Pediatric Endocrinologist

Compassionate Care for Young Patients

Glendale, Arizona Nov 27, 2025 (Issuewire.com) - With an unwavering commitment to enhancing the lives of children grappling with hormonal imbalances, diabetes, and obesity, Dr. Rimah Sharief has emerged as a distinguished figure in pediatric endocrinology. Her recognition as a "Top Doctor" in the 2024 edition of Women in Medicine Magazine underscores her dedication and expertise in this vital field.

As of 2025, Dr. Sharief has begun a new chapter in her career as a Pediatric Endocrinology Consultant at the Ministry of National Guard Health Affairs (MNGHA) in Saudi Arabia, where she will serve for the next two years. In this role, she continues to build on her deep-rooted commitment to pediatric health, bringing her expertise to an international healthcare setting.

For over two decades, Dr. Sharief has devoted herself to improving children's healthcare. Her work extends beyond clinical practice; she actively engages in her community, leading youth health initiatives and participating in educational panels that promote health and wellness. This holistic approach emphasizes her belief in the importance of not just treating conditions, but also educating families and communities about health management.

Currently practicing at the Banner Children's Specialists Endocrinology Clinic in Glendale, Arizona, Dr. Sharief has also served as an Assistant Professor of Pediatrics at the University of Arizona. Her academic contributions and clinical excellence have made her a sought-after consultant in her field.

Dr. Sharief's patient-centered philosophy is at the core of her practice. She understands that each child is unique, and she is dedicated to providing personalized care that takes into account their specific circumstances and needs. By fostering strong partnerships with families, she empowers them to play an active role in their child's healthcare journey. This collaborative approach not only enhances treatment outcomes but also instills confidence and hope in families facing challenging health issues.

Her extensive training has equipped her with the skills necessary to navigate the complexities of pediatric endocrine disorders effectively. Dr. Sharief completed her fellowship in Pediatric Endocrinology at Maimonides Medical Center in 2018, following a rigorous residency in Pediatrics at Richmond University Medical Center in 2015. She earned her medical degree from Upper Nile University in 2003 and is board-certified in both pediatric endocrinology and pediatrics, receiving certifications from the American Board of Pediatrics in 2021 and 2016, respectively.

Dr. Rimah Sharief's passion for pediatric care, combined with her impressive credentials, positions her as a leader in her field. As she continues to advocate for the health and well-being of children, her work remains a beacon of hope for families navigating the challenges of endocrine disorders.
