

Earth 2035: A Visionary Nonfiction Call to Save the Planet by Tom Orrowchild

Tomah, Wisconsin Nov 20, 2025 (Issuewire.com) - A powerful and timely work, Earth 2035 challenges readers to confront humanity's role in the planet's future while offering a pathway toward global cooperation and environmental responsibility. The book blends scientific insight, philosophical reflection, and practical solutions to highlight the urgent issues facing Earth today.

A Book That Urges Action for the Future of Life on Earth

Earth 2035 explores a wide range of critical concerns such as climate change, overpopulation, pollution, unsustainable growth, and biodiversity loss through a compelling concept introduced by the author: the “Logic of Scale.” This framework encourages readers to understand how individual and collective choices impact the planet's long-term survival.

More than just analysis, the book provides actionable strategies, emphasizing intelligent decision-making and global unity as essential tools for protecting future generations. It serves as both a warning and an inspiring call to action for readers who seek to make a meaningful difference.

About the Author

Born in 1970 to immigrant parents in the UK, Tom Orrowchild grew up navigating two contrasting worlds: the stability of British life and the simplicity and challenges of rural Punjab, India. These early experiences deeply shaped his worldview, instilling an awareness of inequality, responsibility, and resilience.

As a teenager, he attended one of England's leading boarding schools, where he learned to adapt to diverse social environments while remaining grounded in his heritage. Though he studied law, he built a successful international business over the next three decades, an achievement that also sharpened his awareness of global environmental challenges.

Tom Orrowchild writes from lived experience, coupling business insight with an urgent plea for environmental accountability.

Inspiration Behind the Book

Orrowchild recognizes the environmental footprint of his business and the larger fashion industry. His commitment to sustainability reflected through ongoing initiatives designed to combat global warming fuels his writing. Earth 2035 is his effort to encourage deeper awareness, personal responsibility, and collective action.

Message to Readers

"I dedicate this book to today's adults because the choices we make now will shape the world for tomorrow's children, their children, and all the generations to come. My hope is that Earth 2035 inspires each of us to think long-term, take responsibility, and act together to create a sustainable, thriving future for those we love."
