

The Weekend Club launches an AI-matched, offline-only alternative to dating apps

Better Than Dating Apps? Algorithmic Serendipity, Hold the Swipes: The Weekend Club (WKND CLUB) today announced the expansion of its AI-matched, tables-of-six weekend brunch format to more global cities, an alternative—to swipe-based dating apps.

Los Angeles, California Nov 11, 2025 (Issuewire.com) - Designed for expats, digital nomads, young professionals, and creatives, The Weekend Club replaces infinite chats with a simple ritual: one weekend, one table, six people. Its matching engine considers time windows, languages, interests, and comfort preferences, then proposes balanced tables where conversation flows without small-talk fatigue. The company reports that by 2025, its AI has curated 10,000+ brunch tables worldwide. 10,000+ tables matched by AI prove a simple thesis: show up once a weekend, meet five new people.

“People are tired of swiping and scheduling,” said Jennifer Wang, Co-founder & CEO of The Weekend Club. “Our idea is simple: let AI do the logistics and table design, so humans can do what they do best—share food, trade stories, and build real ties—without living inside an app.”

Why now

Swiping has entered a backlash era, and big platforms are racing to bolt AI onto legacy experiences.

Analysts note the category's malaise and debate whether AI will fix or worsen the core issues of fatigue and low trust; either way, offline quality time is back at the center of the conversation.

Meanwhile, a new wave of AI matchmaking startups is cutting chat entirely—planning first dates and nudging users back into the real world—signaling a broader product shift from screen time to show-up time.

How The Weekend Club works

- Tell us your weekend: share your available time windows, basic profile, and conversation comfort levels.
- Our AI seats the table: small-group constraints (6 seats) optimize for vibe, diversity, and safety.
- Meet IRL: show up to a vetted venue, phones down by default, icebreakers optional.
- Feedback → better tables: lightweight post-brunch signals help the system improve future seating.

What makes it different

- Offline-first by design — No endless DMs. Your weekend plan is the product.
- Tables, not “matches” — Six people create more surface area for opportunities (friends, co-founders, leads, even romance) without the pressure of 1:1 dates.
- Safety & comfort — Group seating, clear norms, and anti-harassment policies make it easier—especially for women—to try new circles with low awkwardness.
- Cross-city culture — Active in Taipei, Hong Kong, Seoul, Singapore, Vienna, and Los Angeles, with additional cities in review.

Early signals

Members commonly report three outcomes within their first few tables:

- New friends & local belonging when arriving in a new city,
- Warm professional leads (coffee chats, intros, freelance briefs),
- Romance that starts as conversation—not as a profile swipe. These trends mirror the broader industry pivot toward less chat, more meet—but place the meeting inside a group ritual rather than a pressure-filled 1:1, which experts suggest is where AI can add structure without hollowing out authenticity.

“AI should be the invisible host—not the relationship,” added the CEO. “We built WKND CLUB so you can leave the app at the door: arrive, sit, eat, talk. If there’s magic, it comes from people—our job is to engineer the room.”
