

Home of Dissertations Sets New Standards for UK Academic Help in 2025

London, United Kingdom Dec 24, 2025 (Issuewire.com) - The UK's top-ranked academic support platform, Home of Dissertations, is designed to support students with the pressure caused by growing workloads at UK universities and rapidly advancing technologies used in education. With their excellence in assisting students, the Home of Dissertations is setting new academic help standards, which are quite evident in 2025.

A spokesperson for Home of Dissertations said, "In 2025, students are facing more pressure because of expanding academic courses and new study methods. Due to this, there is an increasing demand for reliable and ethical support to be successful without sacrificing academic integrity, so our objective is to help students achieve their academic goals without any stress."

Rising Academic Pressure in 2025

According to recent research, including both HEPI's 2025 Student Generative AI Survey and Studiosity's 2025 Student Wellbeing Survey, UK students are facing several unprecedented challenges:

- 92% of undergraduate students are now using some form of generative AI (such as ChatGPT) to help them with their coursework.
- In the survey, 61% of undergraduate students report that fear of failure is one of the reasons they experience stress, while 52% report that balancing academic and personal responsibilities increases academic stress.

Due to these demands, there has been an increased need for reputable academic support services that provide quality, timely, and ethical support.
