Las Vegas, Nevada Dec 30, 2025 (Issuewire.com) - Offering listeners a chant-like spiritual energy, music artist Scott Linker has come up with a brand new song that can take listeners into a different dimension. The song is titled 'Hare Krishna,' and it was especially created for the devotees of Lord Krishna. However, it is not just a devotional song as it has much philosophy and poetic essence to it. The greatest religion that one can serve is humanity, and this song is all about living in harmony with everyone, including humans, nature, and God. The song appears in his latest album project, 'Eastern Grooves For Nervous Times', which is highly inspired by the works of George Harrison, Anoushka Shankar, and Kula Shaker.

The latest album project offers a strong resonance of Sanskrit mantras along with EDM and Pop musical arrangements. As a result, it sounds quite exotic and regional at the same time with its fusion sound designs. The reflection of the whole album can be found through 'Hare Krishna', which also offers a similar taste with singing, chanting, and captivating music. The classic fusion energy in the song can remind listeners of the Beatles and their musical releases after they visited India. Scott's songs can offer listeners a joyful buzz through music that leaves a lasting impact in the market. According to Scott, 'Music designed to uplift in difficult times' and his musical creations can definitely empower the listeners.

The latest album 'Eastern Grooves For Nervous Times' offers a total of 8 songs and each of them provides a fair share of Indian mythology, philosophy and spiritual beliefs. Every song from the album like 'Namaste', 'Om Ganesha', 'Call of the Mild', 'Divided States', etc showcases a strong sense of philosophy for life that expands through spirituality and religion. It is safe to say that Scott is not just a believer in Hinduism, but he found a way to express his creativity and spirituality through music that can resonate with others as well. He has absorbed dynamic cultures from countries like India, Japan, Israel, and others, which reflect through his craft.
