

THE CANCER TWINS Releases Two Brand New Songs Celebrating a New Chapter

THE CANCER TWINS is here with a soulful pair of new releases. The newly released songs have heart-touching vocals, reflective lyrics, and warm guitar work.

Edmonton, Dec 10, 2025 (Issuewire.com) - Atmospheric music can feel like a slow wave rising without warning, submerging the listeners. The work from THE CANCER TWINS carries the same kind of pull, and the duo's newly released tracks bear the proof of it. The story of these two musicians goes back to 1968, when Michael Frank Phillet and Roderick Neil Maciver started writing at university and began shaping a bond that would guide them for many years of touring and recording under the name Magic Music. The duo's journey moved through long roads, valuable bonds, close calls, and a fight with cancer that almost took both of them in 2015. Yet both of them chose to keep going by changing their name to The Cancer Twins.

These two new releases are a part of their rebranding. One of the songs, 'On a Stairway to the Stars' carries a calm presence made from gentle reflection and a vocal that sits close to the listener. This gives the lyrics even more meaning and impact. The song's composition moves like a quiet climb through memory, taking the audience on a musical journey. On the other hand, 'Artist with a Scientific Mind' opens with a thoughtful tone. It is shaped by guitar work rising in soft layers. The writing leans more towards curiosity, while the vocals on this single carry a steady touch, allowing the song to glow in its own way. Each component of the composition in the two new releases has its own room to breathe. This makes these two releases more symbolic and memorable. Listen to the songs on Spotify, along with the duo's previous tracks like 'Under Another Moon 1985Ce - Remastered Version 2024', 'Go GoGo', 'Wings of Delight (Piano Version)', etc.
