Austin, Texas Jan 30, 2026 (Issuewire.com) - Collab Only, a new collaboration platform built for the modern content economy, today announced the official launch of its matchmaking platform designed to connect creators, products, businesses, streamers, podcasters, marketers, affiliates, and social media clippers in one unified ecosystem.

The platform introduces a swipe based matching experience that makes it easy for users to discover, connect, and collaborate with partners who help create, grow, and monetize content, products, and brands. Collab Only is built to support the full lifecycle of digital content and product promotion, from creation and distribution to monetization, audience growth, and customer acquisition.

As content creation, marketing, and digital commerce continue to expand across platforms such as YouTube, TikTok, Twitch, Instagram, podcasts, and online marketplaces, creators, marketers, products, and businesses face increasing difficulty finding the right collaborators. Collab Only addresses this challenge by enabling users to match based on roles, goals, and collaboration needs, rather than relying on cold outreach or disconnected tools.

"Content, marketing, and commerce today are team efforts," said Samuel Moreno, founder of Collab Only. Streamers need clippers, podcasters need guests and marketers, affiliates need products, businesses need creators who can drive results, and marketers need partners who can execute at scale. Collab Only brings everyone into one place and makes collaboration simple, fast, and intentional.

Collab Only supports a wide range of collaboration types, including creator and brand partnerships, product promotions, streamer and clip creator collaborations, podcast guest bookings, content distribution, affiliate partnerships, performance based campaigns, marketing collaborations, and cross creator collaborations.

Users can create profiles, browse potential matches, and unlock in app messaging once both parties show interest. The platform is designed to be intuitive, mobile first, and accessible to users at any stage, whether they are established professionals or just getting started.

The platform launches with support for creators, marketers, products, and businesses across major social, content, and commerce platforms and will continue expanding features focused on collaboration discovery, growth tools, and monetization opportunities.

Collab Only is available starting January 30, 2026, at <https://collabonly.com> . Creators, product owners, businesses, marketers, and growth partners can sign up today and begin matching with collaborators worldwide.
