

Cousino Restoration & Environmental Keeps Communities Warm Through Annual Coat Drive

Toledo, Ohio Jan 26, 2026 (Issuewire.com) - Giving back is nothing new for Cousino Restoration & Environmental. Each year, as temperatures drop across Northwest Ohio and Michigan, the Cousino team steps in with a mission that goes beyond restoration—helping neighbors stay warm when it matters most.

This November, Cousino partnered with Schrader Tire for its annual winter coat drive, collecting more than 300 hats, gloves, and scarves. The donated items were distributed to a dozen local charities throughout Northwest Ohio and Michigan, supporting individuals and families facing the cold winter months.

What sets this effort apart is what happens behind the scenes.

Before any donation left Cousino's hands, every item was processed through the company's state-of-the-art textile cleaning facility. The same advanced equipment used to restore clothing and soft goods after fire or water damage was used to professionally clean, sanitize, and prepare each coat and accessory. The result—donations that were not only warm, but safe, fresh, and ready to wear.

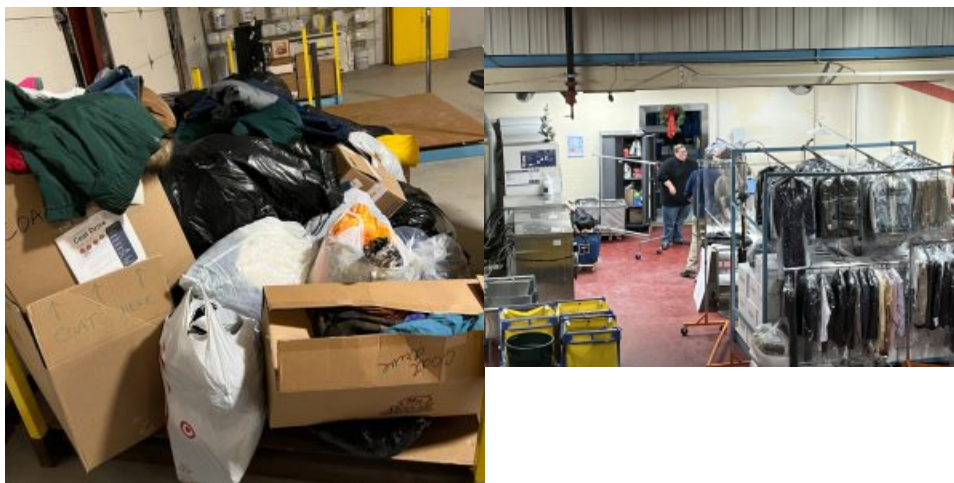

"We want people to receive these items with dignity," said Sherry, of Cousino Restoration & Environmental. "Because we have a professional textile cleaning facility, we're able to make sure everything is thoroughly cleaned before it's donated. It's something we're proud to do every year."

Cousino is best known for responding quickly when homes and businesses are impacted by water, fire, storm, or mold damage. But their commitment to the community doesn't stop when the emergency ends. This coat drive is one of several ways the company stays involved year-round, using its resources to support the people it serves.

For Cousino, restoration isn't just about buildings. It's about care. It's about preparation. And it's about showing up—again and again.
