

New Kickstarter Project “Hagane no Yakusoku – Steel Promise” Brings Emotional Mecha Comic and Animation to Life

An indie creator launches a hybrid comic and animation campaign blending rivalry, romance and futuristic robotics.

Los Angeles, California Jan 12, 2026 (IssueWire.com) - Indie creator Jamiee has officially launched a new Kickstarter campaign titled Hagane no Yakusoku – Steel Promise (Comic + Animation), an original storytelling project that blends emotionally driven narrative with dynamic mecha-inspired visuals.

Hagane no Yakusoku, meaning “Steel Promise is a coming-of-age story forged through rivalry, romance, and futuristic technology. The project combines a professionally illustrated comic with animated elements, offering supporters a unique hybrid experience that bridges traditional comics and modern animation.

The Kickstarter campaign invites fans of comics, anime-inspired storytelling, and science-fiction drama to participate directly in the creation process. Backers will gain access to exclusive rewards, early content, and behind-the-scenes insights while helping bring the project from concept to completion.

This project is deeply personal, said creator Jamiee. “Steel Promise explores emotional bonds, perseverance, and the promises we carry through hardship, all set within a world of steel, machines, and human connection.

The campaign is currently live on Kickstarter and will run for a limited time, offering supporters the opportunity to help shape an ambitious independent creative project from the ground up.
