Madison, Wisconsin Jan 27, 2026 (IssueWire.com) - Quigley Decks, a trusted deck contractor serving the Madison area, announces its focus on helping homeowners plan custom deck projects and railing installations for spring construction. With 25 years of experience building outdoor living spaces and installing modern railing systems throughout southern Wisconsin, the company emphasizes that winter provides ideal timing for homeowners to design, plan, and schedule projects that transform both exterior and interior spaces.

Founded by Irish native Tim Quigley, the company has established itself as a reliable partner for homeowners seeking professional deck construction and custom railing services throughout Madison and surrounding communities in southern Wisconsin.

"Winter is actually the perfect time to start planning your deck and railing projects," said Tim Quigley, owner of Quigley Decks. "Homeowners have time to really envision what they want, explore material options for both deck surfaces and railing systems, and get on the schedule for spring construction. By planning now, families can ensure their new outdoor living space is ready when Wisconsin weather finally cooperates."

Quigley Decks specializes in custom deck construction tailored to individual property characteristics, family needs, and aesthetic preferences. Whether homeowners envision a simple platform deck for entertaining or a complex multi-level structure with custom features, the company's quarter-century of experience enables the team to bring diverse visions to life.

Beyond deck construction, Quigley Decks has developed specialized expertise in modern railing systems for both exterior and interior applications. The company offers three primary railing options—cable, aluminum, and composite—each providing distinct advantages for different applications and aesthetic preferences.

"Railing systems have evolved significantly over the past 25 years, and we've stayed at the forefront of those changes," Quigley explained. "Whether homeowners want the sleek, unobstructed views that cable railing provides, the durability and low maintenance of aluminum systems, or the warmth and variety of composite options, we have the expertise to design and install railing that transforms spaces both inside and outside the home."

Cable railing has become increasingly popular for homeowners seeking modern aesthetics and unobstructed views. The system uses stainless steel cables tensioned between posts, creating minimalist barriers that preserve sightlines while meeting safety codes. Cable railing works beautifully for deck applications where preserving views is a priority, interior staircases and lofts where open, airy aesthetics are desired, and contemporary designs that emphasize clean lines.

Aluminum railing provides durability and virtually maintenance-free performance that Wisconsin homeowners appreciate. The powder-coated aluminum resists rust, weathering, and fading while offering diverse color and style options. Aluminum railing excels for exterior deck applications exposed to Wisconsin weather and homeowners seeking long-term durability without ongoing maintenance demands.

Composite railing combines the warm appearance of traditional materials with modern durability and low maintenance requirements. These systems resist rot, insects, and weathering while offering color and texture options that complement various architectural styles. Composite railing works well for homeowners preferring traditional aesthetics with modern performance and properties where matching deck surface materials creates cohesive design.

Quigley's Irish background brings a unique perspective to both deck building and railing installation, infusing projects with attention to detail and craftsmanship that clients consistently praise. His truthful, direct communication style ensures that homeowners understand exactly what to expect throughout every project.

"I believe in keeping things honest and straightforward," Quigley said. "Homeowners deserve to know exactly what they're getting, what it will cost, and how long it will take. No surprises, no runarounds—just direct conversation about what works for your property and your budget. And if we can share a laugh or two along the way, even better."

The company's expertise extends to both exterior deck and railing installations as well as interior railing applications. Exterior work includes deck construction with integrated railing systems, stair railings that provide secure access, and elevated walkways. Interior applications encompass staircase railings that create striking focal points, loft and second-story barriers, and basement stair railings that enhance finished living spaces.

Quigley Decks' quarter-century of experience in the Madison area has provided deep knowledge of local building requirements, regional climate considerations, and the specific challenges that Wisconsin weather presents for outdoor structures. This expertise enables the company to recommend solutions that deliver both immediate appeal and long-term durability.

The customer-focused philosophy that has defined Quigley Decks for 25 years ensures that every project reflects both professional craftsmanship and individual homeowner preferences. The combination of humor and professionalism creates an atmosphere where homeowners feel comfortable asking questions and expressing concerns throughout planning and construction.

Winter planning allows homeowners to make thoughtful decisions about deck and railing projects without peak season pressure. Quigley Decks works with clients to explore design options, select materials suited for Wisconsin conditions, establish realistic budgets, and create construction timelines that align with family schedules.
