

THE CANCER TWINS Brings Out New Music, Making Memory Meet Melody

The talented singer-songwriter duo, THE CANCER TWINS, is back, and this time, they have brought four new charismatic and impactful songs for their listeners.

Edmonton, Jan 5, 2026 (IssueWire.com) - Music cannot be defined by any age or boundaries, and THE CANCER TWINS return with a set of songs that are shaped by time, not trends. The duo has released four brand new songs, where their long shared history runs through. Each of the newly released track lean into careful composition and quiet confidence, shaped by the duo's immense power and dedication. Although the four songs are completely different in composition from one another, there is one trait that is common to all of them. It is the writing that feels lasting, not something that is created to compete with others in the industry.

The songs are titled 'Just a Passionate Guy', 'Under Another Moon 1985Ce', 'Wings of Delight', and 'Apostles Versus Agnostics', and they all carry significant tones about themselves. 'Just a Passionate Guy' opens with ease, where the lyrics are direct and impactful. The verses touch conviction without forcing drama. Michael Frank Phillet's vocals carry warmth and restraint, letting the emotion settle naturally. On the other hand, 'Under Another Moon 1985Ce' feels more reflective in tone. The guitar lines in its composition sit gently beneath the vocal, making the song stay in the listeners' minds for a long time. While 'Wings of Delight' leans into melody and lift, the last release, 'Apostles Versus Agnostics', closes the set with lyrical depth.

The entire range of their music shows the audience a picture of a duo who still trust their instincts. The artistic creativity shown in the discography makes the impact of THE CANCER TWINS undeniable.
