

Celebrating Excellence In Nursing: America's Best Medicine Profiles Gary Homeier, MSN, PMC-ED, APNP, AGACNP-BC

A Leader in Adult-Gerontology Acute Care Nursing Recognized for Clinical Expertise, Education, and Exceptional Patient Care

Kenosha, Wisconsin Feb 24, 2026 (IssueWire.com) - Gary Homeier, MSN, PMC-ED, APNP, AGACNP-BC, is an accomplished Adult-Gerontology Acute Care Nurse Practitioner widely respected for his expertise in critical care, interventional pulmonology, and advanced nursing practice. With extensive experience managing high-acuity adult patients across multiple intensive care environments—including medical, surgical, neurovascular, transplant, and cardiac ICUs—Gary consistently upholds the highest standards of clinical excellence.

His advanced practice skills include a broad range of life-saving interventions such as Advanced Cardiac Life Support (ACLS), emergency trauma management, intra-aortic balloon pump (IABP) and Impella management, Continuous Renal Replacement Therapy (CRRT), sepsis management, and numerous critical care procedures. These procedures include endotracheal intubation, central venous catheter placement (including hemodialysis access), central venous introducer and Swan-Ganz catheter insertion, arterial line placement, thoracentesis, and paracentesis. His commitment to evidence-based practice ensures exceptional patient outcomes even in the most complex and demanding clinical situations.

Beyond his clinical role, Gary is a dedicated educator and mentor who is passionate about advancing nursing practice. He earned his Master of Science in Nursing as an Adult-Gerontology Acute Care Nurse Practitioner and a Post-Master's Certificate in Nursing Education from Walden University. His leadership experience includes serving as an Intensive Care Clinical Orientation Coordinator and a Neurovascular & Trauma Clinical Educator, where he developed comprehensive training programs designed to strengthen clinical competency and promote best practices among new critical care nurses.

Gary's unwavering dedication to compassionate and high-quality patient care has earned him meaningful recognition, including the distinguished DAISY Award for extraordinary nursing. His exemplary service during the COVID-19 pandemic was honored by the U.S. House of Representatives with both a Certificate of Special Congressional Recognition and Wisconsin's First District Health Care Hero Award.

In addition to his clinical and educational contributions, Gary has participated in scholarly work related to digital health technologies and clinical decision-support tools aimed at improving care for vulnerable populations. His involvement in professional organizations—including the American Association of Critical-Care Nurses and the American Nurses Association—reflects his commitment to advancing patient-centered care and strengthening the nursing profession.

Gary Homeier exemplifies the highest levels of dedication, expertise, and leadership in nursing. His contributions continue to elevate patient care, support the development of future clinicians, and enrich the broader healthcare community.
