

Daniel Cade Montague, MOTR/L, Recognized by America's Best in Medicine for Excellence in Occupational Therapy

Advancing Patient Independence, Holistic Care, and Community Engagement Across Mississippi

Jackson, Mississippi Feb 13, 2026 (IssueWire.com) - Daniel Cade Montague, MOTR/L, is a highly skilled occupational therapist whose extensive experience spans pediatric, adult, and geriatric populations. With over fifteen years of practice, Montague combines clinical expertise, creativity, and a holistic approach to enhance patient outcomes across inpatient, outpatient, acute care, and long-term rehabilitation settings.

Montague holds a Master of Science in Occupational Therapy from the University of Mississippi Medical Center, a Bachelor of Science in Exercise Science from Mississippi College, and an Associate of Arts in Music from Holmes Community College. This multidisciplinary background informs his innovative approach to therapy, allowing him to integrate evidence-based techniques, therapeutic activities, adaptive equipment, self-care retraining, and cognitive-behavioral strategies tailored to each patient's unique needs.

Throughout his career, Montague has provided specialized care to patients with diverse diagnoses, including traumatic brain injury, spinal cord injury, Autism Spectrum Disorder, Sensory Processing Disorder, orthopedic injuries, cerebral palsy, and Down syndrome, among others. He utilizes advanced rehabilitation techniques such as Neurodevelopmental Treatment (NDT), Proprioceptive Neuromuscular Facilitation (PNF), sensory integration, splinting, joint mobilization, and customized therapeutic exercises to promote functional independence and quality of life.

In addition to his clinical work, Montague has made significant contributions to occupational therapy education. As program director and instructor for the Occupational Therapy Assistant program at Holmes Community College, he has mentored students, overseen curriculum development, managed program budgets, and built clinical partnerships with local healthcare providers. He has also served as a clinical instructor at Mississippi Baptist Health System, guiding fieldwork students and supervising occupational therapy assistants within interdisciplinary care teams.

Montague's commitment extends beyond professional practice. He serves as a supervising therapist at Jackson Free Clinic, providing services to underserved populations, and volunteers with the American Occupational Therapy Association's Free Climbs program, supporting adaptive recreational opportunities for individuals with disabilities.

Known for his patient-centered approach and dedication to holistic care, Daniel Cade Montague draws on his background in music and exercise science to enhance therapy experiences. His lifelong commitment to learning, teaching, and community service reflects a deep passion for empowering patients, students, and colleagues to achieve their full potential and improve overall quality of life.
