

Denver Specialty Supply Store Reports Growth Supporting Independent Concrete Coating Contractors

Lone Star Decorative Concrete Supply Denver sees increased demand from small contractors as specialty trades gain momentum across Colorado's construction sector.

brick-and-mortar specialty retailer of professional-grade epoxy and concrete coating products, reports sustained growth supporting independent contractors throughout Colorado as specialty trades continue gaining market share in the state's construction industry. The store has become a resource for small contractors entering or expanding in the decorative concrete coating sector.

According to the company, independent contractors and small crews represent the majority of its customer base, with many operating as one- or two-person operations focusing on residential garage floors, basement coatings, and commercial surface applications. This business model reflects broader trends in Colorado's construction sector, where specialty trades are experiencing growth as contractors seek services with lower overhead and flexible scheduling compared to traditional construction work.

"Independent contractors are the backbone of what we do here," said Jorge Rodriguez of Lone Star Decorative Concrete Supply Denver. "These are people building businesses from the ground up—they need suppliers who understand their challenges, stock the right products, and give them straight information without the runaround. We're not just selling epoxy; we're helping people succeed in this trade."

Lone Star Decorative Concrete Supply Denver stocks only tested, professional-grade epoxy systems, surface preparation equipment, and application tools used by experienced installers. The store provides product guidance, technical troubleshooting, and job-specific recommendations for contractors at all experience levels across Colorado.

Unlike online suppliers or big-box retailers, the Denver location offers hands-on product education, allowing contractors to examine coating samples, discuss project variables, and access inventory immediately without shipping delays. This direct support model has positioned the store as a partner for contractors who rely on expert guidance and consistent product availability to maintain their reputations and project timelines.

The company serves installers throughout Colorado, from Front Range metro areas to mountain and rural communities. As demand for epoxy floor coatings continues growing in both residential and light commercial sectors, Lone Star Decorative Concrete Supply Denver has expanded its inventory to support contractors building sustainable businesses in the specialty concrete coating industry.

The store's focus on independent contractors reflects a commitment to supporting local business growth and providing the infrastructure small trades need to compete effectively. By combining professional-grade products with accessible expertise, Lone Star Denver helps contractors deliver quality results that build their client bases through referrals and repeat business.
