

Dr Saleh Al Daghreer and City Orthodontics Emphasize Ongoing Professional Development in Orthodontic Care

Edmonton, Alberta Feb 13, 2026 (IssueWire.com) - Dr. Saleh Al Daghreer, orthodontist and owner of City Orthodontics in Edmonton, shared an update on the clinic's continued focus on professional development and ongoing learning as part of responsible orthodontic practice.

The update reflects City Orthodontics' approach to staying aligned with current orthodontic guidance, evolving clinical knowledge, and professional expectations within a regulated healthcare environment.

Orthodontic care changes over time as research, techniques, and clinical recommendations develop. City Orthodontics has stated that continued learning plays a role in how treatment planning, patient communication, and clinical review processes are maintained.

As part of this focus, the clinic supports participation in continuing education activities, professional study resources, and clinical review discussions relevant to orthodontic care. These activities help ensure that daily practice reflects current understanding rather than outdated habits.

Dental education platforms often note that ongoing professional learning supports patient safety and consistency in care. City Orthodontics has aligned its approach with these principles to support thoughtful and informed orthodontic treatment over long timelines.

Dr. Saleh Al Daghreer said,

"Orthodontic care does not stay static. Ongoing learning helps ensure that clinical decisions remain thoughtful and grounded in current knowledge. This is part of our responsibility to patients and to the profession."

City Orthodontics continues to provide orthodontic care within provincial regulatory frameworks and emphasizes professional responsibility as part of its practice culture. The clinic has stated that its approach to professional development reflects a commitment to careful decision-making and long-term patient trust.
