26-Year-Old Indian Investor Launches Publicly Tracked Dividend-Growth Portfolio

Aditya Gaur shares his investment portfolio live on Financexaditya to document his long-term dividend-growth compounding journey

Saharanpur, Uttar Pradesh Mar 11, 2026 (Issuewire.com) - Aditya Gaur, a 26-year-old retail investor and founder of Financexaditya, has shared his publicly tracked dividend-growth portfolio to document the long-term compounding power of dividend investing.

The tracker hosted on Financexaditya allows readers to see how a long-term dividend portfolio evolves over time. The tracker publicly displays the stocks held in the portfolio, purchase prices, yield on cost, annual dividend income from each company, and overall portfolio dividend performance.

The goal is to make the dividend-growth investing transparent and easier to understand for retail investors. This portfolio tracker shows the actual investment, dividend income, and portfolio growth, rather than theoretical examples.

The tracker also has charts that break down portfolio allocation across sectors such as Auto, IT, FMCG, and more. Additional charts track individual stock performance and dividend income growth, helping investors understand how dividend compounding works.

"Dividend-Growth Investing is not widely recognised in India, and I want to change that by using a transparent tracker to show people how great it is for long-term," said Aditya Gaur, "This tracker helps people build trust, avoid mistakes, and show what to expect in the long term."

The tracker is updated whenever there is a change in portfolio, and it serves as an educational resource for long-term investors interested in building dividend income.

Financexaditya also tracks upcoming dividend stocks, updated daily, showing recently declared dividends and expected payouts, giving investors a way to monitor dividend announcements without scanning multiple company filings.
