

America's Best In Medicine Spotlights Kristoffer John Rouse, PhD, LMHC, CHT, For Leading EvolvCARE Counseling

Unlocking Human Potential by Blending Compassion, Neuroscience, and Technology to Empower Neurodiverse Youth and Adults Through Evidence-Based, Client-Centered Therapy

the CEO and Owner of EvolvCARE Counseling PLLC, a leading mental health practice in Issaquah, Washington, providing specialized psychotherapy services throughout the Greater Seattle area. With a Doctorate in Psychology from Walden University and a Master's Degree in Clinical Psychology from Argosy University, Dr. Rouse brings over a decade of clinical experience supporting children, adolescents, and adults facing a wide range of mental health challenges. His work is grounded in respect for each individual's uniqueness and a commitment to personalized, evidence-based care.

Dr. Rouse's clinical focus includes neurodiverse children, adolescents, and young adults who often feel misunderstood. He has extensive experience helping individuals with ADHD, behavioral disorders, Autism Spectrum, anger management, anxiety, depression, video game addiction, and the unique challenges young adults face during life transitions. Known affectionately by clients as "the real deal nerd," Dr. Rouse integrates his knowledge of Marvel, DC, anime, Pokémon, Minecraft, and other fandoms into therapy sessions. This approach fosters trust, opens dialogue, and creates a collaborative environment where clients feel understood within their own interests and worldviews.

Through EvolvCARE Counseling, Dr. Rouse employs an eclectic, science-based, and intuitive therapeutic approach tailored to each client's goals. Utilizing advanced methods such as EMDR, virtual reality therapy, hypnotherapy, and mindfulness, he empowers clients to build resilience, achieve behavioral change, and pursue long-term personal growth. His work emphasizes fostering insight, maximizing potential, and providing practical tools to navigate life's challenges.

Throughout his career, Dr. Rouse has held key leadership positions, including Director of Counseling Internships at Dayspring Behavioral Health, where he supervised and mentored emerging clinicians, oversaw practicum and internship placements, and supported professional development. His extensive background also includes postdoctoral fellowship training, clinical internships in medical and community settings, and neuropsychological and forensic assessment experience.

Clients and colleagues recognize Dr. Rouse for his integrative and approachable style, rooted in existential-humanistic principles, creating a relatable and engaging therapeutic environment. His ability to merge clinical expertise with genuine empathy allows clients to feel supported while navigating complex mental health concerns.

Outside of his professional practice, Dr. Rouse enjoys time with his children and loved ones, exploring interests in quantum physics, spirituality, comic books, and research studies. A trained martial artist and psychometrist, he is also a dedicated annual Comic-Con attendee. Friends describe him as calming, innovative, and affectionately as the "Batman" of their circle.

Through EvolvCARE Counseling PLLC, Dr. Kristoffer John Rouse continues to advance the field of mental health by delivering individualized care that transforms challenges into opportunities for growth, resilience, and long-term fulfillment.
