Dover, Delaware Mar 24, 2026 (Issuewire.com) - Amven Nutrition, a U.S.-based fitness and nutrition platform, is introducing a new ecosystem designed to connect fitness creators, personal trainers, and health-focused consumers through innovative supplement solutions and digital tools.

The company operates through a dual business model that combines a creator-driven supplement platform with a direct-to-consumer nutrition marketplace. This approach allows Amven Nutrition to serve both industry professionals and everyday consumers who are seeking reliable supplementation and guidance. Individuals interested in learning more about the company's supplements and services can visit the official platform at Amven Nutrition official website, where customers—particularly within the Hispanic community in the United States—can access supplements and educational resources designed for their fitness goals.

A Platform for Trainers and Fitness Creators

One of the core pillars of Amven Nutrition is its creator platform, designed for personal trainers, fitness influencers, and sports organizations that want to launch their own supplement brands without the traditional barriers associated with manufacturing and inventory.

Through this platform, trainers and creators can develop their own branded supplement lines, including products such as whey protein, creatine, amino acids, pre-workout formulas, vitamins, and wellness supplements. The system operates on a print-on-demand model, which eliminates the need for large upfront investments or inventory requirements that often exceed thousands of units in traditional supplement manufacturing.

Amven Nutrition manages the operational infrastructure, including production, fulfillment, and shipping across the United States. This allows creators to focus on what they do best: building their communities, educating their audiences, and promoting their brands.

Creators interested in launching their own supplement brands can explore the platform designed for content creators and trainers at Private label supplements for creators and trainers, where Amven Nutrition provides the infrastructure necessary to build personalized supplement lines without inventory requirements.

Beyond supplements, trainers working with Amven Nutrition can expand their personal brands across multiple verticals. Through the platform, fitness professionals have the opportunity to create their own sportswear lines using a print-on-demand model, allowing them to launch gym apparel collections without the need for inventory or upfront production costs.

The platform currently provides access to more than sixty supplement formulations that creators can customize under their own brand. A full catalog of the available white-label supplements offered by Amven Nutrition can be explored at white label supplement catalog

In addition, Amven Nutrition integrates with global publishing platforms that enable trainers to monetize their knowledge by creating and selling books related to fitness, training, and nutrition. These books can be distributed worldwide in both physical and digital formats, allowing trainers to transform their expertise into scalable educational products. Trainers interested in publishing their own educational materials can learn more through the platform's fitness publishing section at Fitness and nutrition book publishing platform.

By combining these tools, Amven Nutrition aims to turn trainers into entrepreneurs and personal brands. Instead of relying solely on coaching services, trainers can build complete fitness businesses across three main verticals: sports supplements, sportswear, and educational fitness content.

All of these solutions operate under a print-on-demand model, eliminating inventory requirements and allowing creators to focus on building their audience, sharing their expertise, and growing sustainable fitness brands.

Direct-to-Consumer Supplements and Nutrition Support

In addition to its creator platform, Amven Nutrition also operates a direct-to-consumer marketplace designed to serve individuals seeking high-quality supplements and professional guidance related to fitness and nutrition.

Through this marketplace, customers in the United States can access a wide range of sports supplements from more than sixty well-known and premium brands in the industry. The platform offers products across multiple categories including protein powders, creatine, amino acids, fat burners, recovery formulas, vitamins, and performance supplements commonly used by athletes and fitness enthusiasts.

A key focus of this initiative is serving the growing Hispanic population in the United States. Amven Nutrition provides Spanish-language support and nutrition guidance through a network of advisors based in Latin America who assist Spanish-speaking clients with personalized recommendations related to supplementation, training goals, and overall wellness.

The direct-to-consumer division is led by Víctor Pérez, founder of Amven Nutrition and a Venezuelan entrepreneur and author in the field of sports nutrition. Pérez currently resides in Ohio and oversees the company's consumer-facing operations, focusing particularly on helping Spanish-speaking individuals improve their health, fitness performance, and nutritional habits.

Pérez has also published educational resources related to fitness and nutrition, which are available globally through online marketplaces such as Amazon. His published work can be explored at Victor Perez sports nutrition book

Through educational guidance and curated supplement options, Pérez and the Amven Nutrition team support individuals looking to lose weight, reduce body fat, increase muscle mass, and improve overall athletic performance.

By combining access to premium supplement brands with personalized nutritional support in Spanish, Amven Nutrition aims to make fitness and health resources more accessible to Hispanic communities across the United States.

Building the Future of Fitness Entrepreneurship and Consumer Health

Amven Nutrition is positioning itself as a modern platform at the intersection of fitness, technology, and entrepreneurship. By providing creators with the infrastructure to launch their own supplement brands, sportswear lines, and fitness publications, the company is building an integrated ecosystem designed to help trainers transform their expertise into scalable businesses.

At the same time, the company's direct-to-consumer platform leverages technology to improve the customer experience. Amven Nutrition offers digital tools such as macronutrient calculators, calorie calculators, and AI-powered fitness assistants designed to help customers better understand their nutritional needs and supplementation strategies.

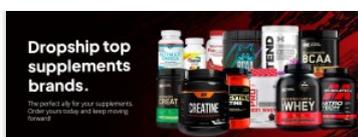

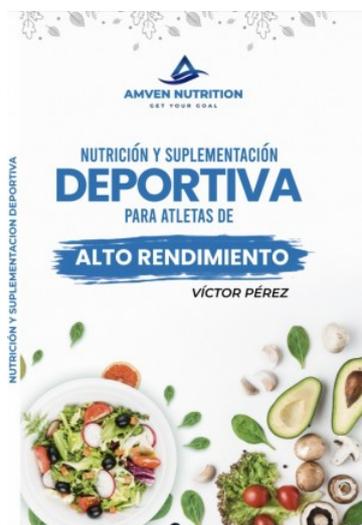

These technologies are part of the company's broader digital ecosystem, which includes proprietary artificial intelligence tools designed specifically for fitness and supplementation guidance. More information about the company's AI-driven fitness technology can be found at Amven Nutrition AI fitness technology

In addition, customers can receive personalized diet and training recommendations based on their individual goals when purchasing supplements through the platform.

With fast shipping across the United States—typically within five days—and access to a wide range of premium supplements and educational resources, Amven Nutrition is steadily establishing itself as an emerging company in the rapidly growing intersection of fitness, health, and technology.

By combining creator empowerment, digital fitness tools, and accessible nutrition guidance, Amven Nutrition continues to expand its mission of making health, performance, and entrepreneurship more accessible within the global fitness community.
