

Brian Casella, Founder of Fox Haus Event Production, Recognized for Innovation in Event Lighting and Production Design

Danbury, Connecticut Mar 18, 2026 (IssueWire.com) - Award-winning lighting engineer and event production expert Brian Casella, founder of Fox Haus Event Production, continues to gain recognition across the Northeast for transforming venues into immersive environments through innovative lighting and technical design.

With more than a decade of experience in event production, Casella has built a reputation for blending creative vision with technical precision. Through Fox Haus Event Production, he has delivered high-end lighting and production solutions for weddings, corporate events, concerts, and large-scale celebrations.

Fox Haus Event Production specializes in architectural uplighting, stage design, rigging, and full-scale event production services that turn ordinary spaces into visually dynamic experiences.

“Lighting is one of the most powerful tools in shaping how people experience an event,” said Brian Casella. “When lighting, staging, and production are designed with intention, you can completely transform a venue and create an atmosphere people remember long after the event ends.”

Casella’s approach combines artistic lighting design with the engineering knowledge required to execute complex productions safely and efficiently. His work has earned industry recognition including Excellence in Event Lighting Design, Top Event Production Professional of the Year, and Outstanding Achievement in Architectural & Ambient Lighting.

Under Casella’s leadership, Fox Haus Event Production has grown into a trusted partner for event planners, venues, and clients seeking high-impact production design. The company is known for its attention to detail, clean aesthetic, and ability to execute technically complex productions while maintaining a seamless guest experience.

“Production is often invisible when it’s done right,” Casella added. “Our goal is to build the technical foundation that allows every other part of the event to shine.”

Beyond his work in event production, Casella is also active as a commercial real estate investor and frequently shares insights on the intersection of creativity, engineering, and entrepreneurship in modern event design.

As demand for immersive event experiences continues to grow, Casella remains focused on pushing the boundaries of lighting and production design while delivering reliable, high-quality results for clients across the region.

About Brian Casella

Brian Casella is an event lighting designer, electrical engineer, and entrepreneur based in Brookfield, Connecticut. He is the founder and CEO of Fox Haus Event Production, a full-service event design and production company specializing in lighting, staging, and immersive environments. Casella’s work has earned multiple industry awards and recognition for excellence in lighting design and event production.

Media Contact

Brian Casella

*****@briancasella.com

Source : Brian Casella

See on IssueWire

