Spotify is currently the most competitive music streaming platform, where all kinds of emerging and indie artists are struggling to gain an adequate number of organic streams that can help them progress. Most indie artists do not get the streams and the fans initially, as US listeners are not aware of them. But with the help of The Tunes Club, the task can get easier. Specializing in Spotify music promotion, the agency is well aware of the changing trends and algorithm of the platform and how it works. They make sure to create a strategic approach through playlist submission, social media marketing, and content marketing that offers impactful and lasting results that can scale up with time. With a highly dynamic network and a huge collection of curated playlists, the agency is capable of promoting all kinds of music artists, whether a singer, a rapper, or a music producer.

The Tunes Club offers a total of four different promotional packages for Spotify music promotion, and each of them is filled with a handful of additional features that make the campaign more effective and authentic at the same time. Firstly, there is the Spotify Marketing Package, where artists can promote only one track through 60+ curated playlists. It can offer up to 3k to 3.5k listeners, along with the benefits of social media promotion, which means the number of followers will increase, too. This affordable package is highly suitable for beginners. Secondly, there is Spotify Promotion Pack which allows promoting two tracks simultaneously through 90+ curated playlists on Spotify. This package can offer around 7k to 7.5k listeners, along with a huge buzz on social media and a paid press release distribution.

Similarly, music artists can also opt for the Spotify Marketing Pro Pack, where they can promote 3 tracks through 120+ curated playlists and gain around 10k to 11k listeners. Other than the paid PR distribution, this package also includes a music blog, which can be further shared through blog submission sites. Last but not least, there is also the Spotify Promotion Pro Pack, which can be considered the ultimate package for Spotify promotion that allows promoting four different tracks through more than 180 curated playlists. This package can offer around 14k to 15k listeners along with a PR, a music blog, and an artist interview for content marketing.
