

EntryTicket Expands Its Role in Powering Event Ticketing and Discovery Across India

Founded by Kenneth Mathews, EntryTicket helps organizers sell tickets and connect audiences with live experiences across multiple cities.

Pune, Maharashtra Mar 9, 2026 (Issuewire.com) - EntryTicket, an event technology platform founded by entrepreneur Kenneth Mathews, is steadily strengthening its presence in India's growing live events ecosystem by helping organizers manage ticket sales and connect audiences with events happening around them.

As India's appetite for live experiences continues to grow — from concerts and festivals to workshops, cultural gatherings, and lifestyle events — organizers increasingly rely on digital platforms to reach wider audiences and simplify ticket distribution. EntryTicket aims to support this shift by providing an accessible platform where organizers can publish events, sell tickets online, and manage event participation more efficiently.

The platform serves as a marketplace for discovering events while giving organizers tools to promote and monetize their experiences through digital ticketing.

“Live events are an important part of culture and community,” said Kenneth Mathews, founder of EntryTicket. “Our goal is to make it easier for organizers to bring their ideas to life while helping audiences discover experiences happening around them.”

EntryTicket has supported a range of event formats including concerts, exhibitions, workshops, community gatherings, and cultural festivals. By combining event discovery with modern ticketing tools, the platform aims to simplify how people find and attend events across different cities.

As the events industry continues to evolve, platforms like EntryTicket are playing a growing role in enabling organizers to reach new audiences and deliver engaging experiences.
