KUT VATAN SETS METAL RECORD WITH 24-LANGUAGE AI CONCEPT ALBUMS

A single composition released across 24 languages marks a new milestone in metal and AI-driven music

KEY FACTS

- 1 composition → 24 languages
- 14 Turkic + 10 Western European languages
- 2 companion albums: Kızıl Elma & Red Apple
- Fully AI-generated vocals & instrumentation
- 40,000+ monthly listeners on Spotify

ANTALYA, TÜRKİYE

A single metal composition has just been released in 24 languages, establishing a new benchmark in the history of the genre and marking one of the most ambitious AI-driven music projects to date.

Kut Vatan, an epic metal project created by cardiovascular surgery specialist;

Dr. Yıldırım Cömertoğlu, presents two interconnected concept albums — Kızıl Elma (February 2, 2026) and Red Apple (March 10, 2026). Together, they reinterpret a single literary source across 14 Turkic and 10 Western European languages, forming a unified multilingual work built on one composition, one melody, and one thematic core.

The entire project is powered by AI-generated instrumentation and vocals, enabling a scale of production that would otherwise be impossible for an independent artist.

A HISTORIC FIRST IN METAL

While multilingual experimentation has precedent in the genre — most notably Manowar's Father (16 languages) — Kut Vatan expands the concept significantly, delivering a 24-language, fully unified composition across two albums.

This positions the project uniquely at the intersection of:

- Metal history: The most languages applied to a single composition within a cohesive concept framework
- AI music production: One of the first large-scale metal projects built entirely on AI-assisted vocals and instrumentation
- Pan-Turkic cultural scope: The first metal project to systematically cover the major Turkic languages within a single artistic vision

BEYOND THE ALBUMS: NEW FORMATS IN METAL

The project extends beyond traditional album structure with two additional innovations:

• Panturkic Mega Opera

Multiple Turkic languages are interwoven within single tracks, creating a layered, multi-lingual composition style rarely explored in metal

• Multilingual Mashup Single

A fully AI-produced track that overlays English-Turkish and German-Turkish versions of the same composition simultaneously — a first in officially released metal

The Sonic DNA of Nations

Beyond the visual mastery, the project redefines the boundaries of Metal in Red Apple album by infusing each track with the raw, melodic soul of its respective culture. While the core remains heavy and diverse across various metal sub-genres, every version is anchored by the unmistakable signature of its people. Whether it is the rhythmic strumming of the Italian mandolin and Spanish guitar, the haunting resonance of the Greek bouzouki, the rustic timber of the German sipsi, or the soaring, folk-driven melodies of Celtic fiddle—each arrangement ensures that the listener isn't just hearing a translation, but a localized sonic heritage. This isn't just music; it's a cultural heartbeat amplified through a wall of sound.

VISUAL IDENTITY: MUSIC VIDEOS & SPOTIFY CANVAS

The project's cinematic vision extends beyond audio into a fully realized visual experience:

- Official Music Videos

"Türk Evladı, Türkiye" — the project's flagship track — has been released as an AI-assisted cinematic music video on VEVO/YouTube, accumulating over 447,000 views. The video is a visual journey through Turkish history, blending individual sacrifice with the grandeur of historical conquest — from the ancient steppes of Central Asia to the modern Republic of Türkiye.

- Spotify Canvas

The Visual Narrative: A Canvas of Empires

In an unprecedented move for digital music, the Spotify Canvas videos transform the listening experience into a chronological odyssey of Turkic warrior evolution. Each historical era is brought to life through the lens of a legendary art style or master painter associated with that language's heritage:

- The Ancient Roots: From the moody, romantic mists of Caspar David Friedrich (German/Great Hunnic Empire) to the turbulent, abstract storms of J.M.W. Turner (English/European Hunnic Empire).
- Post-Impressionist & Impressionist Visions: The Göktürk Khaganate is reborn through the vibrant, swirling impasto of Van Gogh (Dutch), while the Uyghur Khaganate finds peace in the dappled, serene light of Claude Monet (French).
- The Height of Form: The Timurid Empire is deconstructed into the sharp, geometric planes of Picasso's Cubism (Spanish), and the Great Seljuk Empire is rendered with the mysterious, smoky sfumato of Leonardo da Vinci (Italian).
- Expressionism & Mysticism: The terrifying iron masks of the Cuman-Kipchaks haunt the anxious, blood-red skies of Edvard Munch (Norwegian)...

A HUMAN STORY BEHIND THE TECHNOLOGY

Dr. Yıldırım Cömertoğlu completed his cardiovascular surgery residency and, upon earning his specialist title, resigned from medicine to join the family business, Delphin Hotels & Resorts, where he serves as Vice Chairman. He brings a unique perspective to the project — combining scientific precision with artistic ambition.

"This project would have been impossible without AI. It allowed me to give a single idea a voice in 24 different languages."

— Dr. Yıldırım Cömertoğlu

WHY IT MATTERS

At a time when AI-generated music is often associated with mass-produced, low-intent content, Kut Vatan demonstrates a different direction: AI as an enabler of large-scale, structured, and culturally grounded artistic expression.

The project transforms Mehmet Emin Yurdakul's poem "Cenge Giderken"—reimagined by Dr. Cömertoğlu as "Ben Bir Türküm"—into a multilingual narrative spanning Europe, Central Asia, and beyond.
