The smarter way to get things done

Gurgaon, Haryana Mar 13, 2026 (IssueWire.com) - Renvora, an emerging corporate solutions platform in India, is attracting growing interest from investors as it expands its ecosystem, supporting organizations with sports initiatives, corporate events, corporate gifting, merchandising, and brand engagement programs.

Founded by Sagar Vashisth and co-founded by Khushi Madaan, Renvora is focused on simplifying how organizations manage engagement initiatives and operational requirements by offering multiple services under one coordinated platform.

The company initially gained traction through sports initiatives and tournament organization, and has since expanded to support a broader set of corporate needs, including employee engagement activities, corporate events, promotional merchandise, and curated gifting solutions. More information about the platform and its services can be found at <https://renvora.in>.

“Our vision with Renvora is to build a structured ecosystem where organizations can manage engagement initiatives and corporate programs without relying on multiple fragmented vendors,” said Sagar Vashisth, Founder of Renvora. “By integrating sports initiatives, corporate events, gifting, and merchandising into a single platform, we aim to simplify execution and help companies build stronger engagement experiences.”

Renvora currently supports corporate clients across several engagement areas, including sports initiatives and tournaments, corporate events and employee engagement programs, brand activations, corporate gifting solutions, and customized merchandising for brands and teams. Organizations exploring integrated engagement and corporate solutions platforms can learn more about Renvora’s ecosystem at <https://renvora.in>.

As companies increasingly look for integrated engagement and operational solutions, platforms that combine multiple corporate services are gaining relevance across the market.

As the platform evolves, Renvora is focused on building a broader ecosystem connecting corporate clients, venues, vendors, and service partners through a structured network. By integrating multiple corporate engagement services within a single coordinated platform, the company aims to streamline how organizations plan, execute, and scale engagement initiatives across different business functions.

The company is currently in advanced discussions with several investors and strategic stakeholders as interest continues to build around its corporate solutions ecosystem.

With its growing network of partners, venues, and service providers, Renvora aims to build one of the emerging ecosystems supporting corporate engagement initiatives and operational programs across India.
