Colorado Springs, Colorado Mar 25, 2026 (IssueWire.com) - Simplify Painting, a residential painting company serving Colorado Springs and surrounding communities, is helping local homeowners take advantage of the upcoming spring season to refresh and protect their properties. As winter gives way to warmer temperatures across Colorado, many homeowners are assessing the wear and damage that months of cold weather, snow, and ice have left behind on their home's surfaces, and spring has become the ideal window to address those issues before they worsen.

The company serves neighborhoods throughout Colorado Springs, including Broadmoor, Flying Horse, Briargate, and Peregrine, as well as Monument, Black Forest, and Manitou Springs. Simplify Painting specializes in interior painting, exterior painting, and painter-for-a-day services tailored specifically to the needs of residential clients across these communities.

Colorado's winters are hard on painted surfaces. Repeated freeze and thaw cycles, moisture intrusion, and prolonged UV exposure during dry winter months can cause paint to crack, peel, and fade in ways that are not always visible until warmer weather arrives. Spring painting addresses those issues early, protecting siding, trim, and interior surfaces from further deterioration while giving homes a refreshed appearance heading into the warmer months.

At the helm of Simplify Painting is Tom Reber, a painting industry veteran with decades of hands-on experience. Reber previously built and operated a respected painting company in Chicago before stepping into a wider role as an HGTV host and industry coach, where he worked with contractors across the country on raising their standards and improving customer experiences. His return to active painting work is driven by a personal mission: to bring genuine respect back to the trades and deliver the kind of service Colorado homeowners deserve.

"Spring is the best time of year for homeowners to take a close look at their exterior surfaces and catch problems before they turn into bigger repairs," said Tom Reber, owner of Simplify Painting. "Paint is not just about appearance. It is one of the primary defenses a home has against moisture and weather damage, and keeping it in good condition matters more than most people realize."

Simplify Painting's one-day painting model is particularly well suited to the spring preparation season, when homeowners want projects completed efficiently so they can enjoy their homes rather than work around an ongoing job site. The approach is built around careful pre-job planning, organized crews, and clear communication, ensuring that when the team arrives, work moves from start to finish without unnecessary delays or disruption to the household.

"The one-day model is not about rushing," Reber said. "It is about showing up fully prepared and respecting the homeowner's time. Spring is a busy season, and our clients should be able to get their home refreshed and move on with the season without a painting project taking over their lives for weeks."

For homeowners who have a growing list of painting to-do items that have accumulated over the winter months, the painter-for-a-day service is designed exactly for that purpose. Rather than leaving smaller tasks unaddressed or hiring multiple contractors for individual jobs, homeowners can book a skilled Simplify Painting professional for a full day and work through a targeted list of projects in a single visit. Common painter-for-a-day tasks include exterior trim touch-ups, windowsill painting, front and interior door painting, accent walls, small room repaints, and interior paint touch-ups throughout the home. It is a practical and cost-effective way to check off a season's worth of painting needs in one efficient appointment.

Every project completed by Simplify Painting is backed by a satisfaction guarantee, giving homeowners confidence before work begins. Whether the scope involves repainting a weathered exterior, refreshing interior living spaces after a long winter, or working through a full day of targeted spring touch-ups, each project receives the same level of care and preparation regardless of size.

As spring schedules fill quickly across Colorado Springs and surrounding communities, Simplify Painting encourages homeowners to reach out early to secure their preferred project dates before the busy season is fully underway.
