

Hong Wei Liao and Botrich Support Vancouver Chinese Amateur Golf Charity Invitational

Advancing community connection and charitable impact through sport and shared purpose

Vancouver, British Columbia Apr 29, 2026 (IssueWire.com) - Hong Wei Liao, Chairman of the Botrich Family Wealth Heritage and Development Center, together with Botrich Inc., continues to support community-driven initiatives that bring together sport, philanthropy, and cross-cultural engagement. Among these is the upcoming Vancouver Chinese Amateur Golf Charity Team Invitational, set to take place on May 19 at a premier golf course in Richmond.

The event will gather community-based golf teams and participants from across the region, united by the theme of “connection through sport.” More than a competitive tournament, the invitational is designed as a platform to strengthen relationships, encourage collaboration, and foster a shared sense of purpose within the community.

Golf, widely recognized for its emphasis on discipline, focus, and perseverance, offers a unique environment for meaningful interaction. Through events like this, participants are able to build trust, exchange ideas, and engage beyond the game itself. The integration of sport and philanthropy adds further depth, positioning the tournament as both a social and charitable initiative.

A central component of the event is its philanthropic mission. Proceeds raised through the tournament and its evening awards gathering will be directed toward international youth-focused causes, supporting children and communities in need. By combining athletic participation with charitable giving, the invitational reflects a growing movement toward purpose-driven community engagement.

With the support of Hong Wei Liao, Botrich continues to expand its role beyond a technology and resource integration platform. The organization actively supports initiatives that connect professionals, entrepreneurs, and community members across borders, while encouraging participation in cultural, social, and philanthropic activities.

As a federally registered Canadian platform with global reach, Botrich Inc. focuses on artificial intelligence applications, digital management, and global resource integration. At the same time, it remains committed to building a high-value ecosystem where business, culture, and social responsibility intersect.

Looking ahead, Hong Wei Liao and Botrich will continue to support initiatives that combine sport, community engagement, and philanthropy. By leveraging global networks alongside local participation, they aim to create opportunities for meaningful connection while contributing to the long-term development of communities and youth-oriented causes.
