the truth about society, and rappers like Blade Brown BMF know how to do it with creativity. This talented rapper has recently come up with a song called "BMF ON MY NECK," which is originally a diss track, and it questions 50 Cent and The Unit for false accusations of calling Big Meech a Snitch. This banger is powerful, engaging, and enjoyable at the same time. Released under the label of Black Mafia Family, the song is currently revolving around the centre of everyone's attention. The song also extends the prolific musical journey of the rapper with another successful milestone.

The banger "BMF ON MY NECK" has also been released with an official music video that perfectly portrays the artist's eclectic presence and a powerful aura that can captivate everyone. Blade Brown has previously dropped many exclusive tracks like 'Listen (feat. Nuski Ongo)', 'Look At It', 'Charley Broun', 'Hood Wit It', etc., that showcase his determination to come up with something new every time. His ever-evolving musical journey will be offering more exquisite bangers in the coming days, and hip-hop enthusiasts are eagerly waiting for it.

Blade is a highly talented American recording artist and a performer as well, who used to dance till the age of 11 and then transitioned to rapping with his knack and love for hip-hop music. He is following the creative routes of his late brother, along with the mentorship of late Juice Cosanostra, better known as Mama Juice, who helped him to become the marketing manager for BMF Entertainment. Being loyal to his Black Mafia Family, this rapper is willing to drop more exquisite tracks in the coming days of his highly successful music career. It is not just music, but Blade also possesses good acting skills, as he was featured in the BMF movie documentary and also received a role on Starz, a BMF TV series.
