

The Trees Are Talking This Earth Week: The Tree Whisperer Celebrates Nature, Magic, and a Breakout Launch

Los Angeles, California Apr 19, 2026 (Issuewire.com) - This Earth Week, a new voice is emerging from the forest—and it's not just the wind through the leaves. The Tree Whisperer, a whimsical audio fantasy series created by Cat Miggs, is capturing listeners' imaginations while reminding audiences to tune in to the natural world around them.

The series follows Susan, a park ranger who discovers she can talk to trees, setting off a chain of magical, chaotic, and heartfelt adventures in Bufford Park. Blending comedy, fantasy, and environmental themes, The Tree Whisperer invites listeners to reconsider their relationship with nature—one conversation at a time.

Since its recent debut, the show has quickly taken root, reaching over 400 streams and downloads in its first week. It has also gained recognition on the festival circuit, earning selections in four media festivals and winning Best Audio Fantasy Podcast at the Wolf Media Festival.

“Earth Week felt like the perfect moment to celebrate this story,” says creator and star Cat Miggs. “At its core, The Tree Whisperer is about listening—really listening—to the world around us. And sometimes, that world has more to say than we expect.”

With its blend of humor, heart, and a touch of the surreal, The Tree Whisperer offers a fresh, imaginative way to engage with themes of environmental awareness, connection, and curiosity.
