Former Marine and Tech Professional Transitions to Real Estate, Redefining Leasing with Authentic Connections

Dallas, Texas May 12, 2026 (IssueWire.com) - Antionette Van, a dedicated Leasing Professional at South Oxford Management, is making waves in the Dallas real estate market with a distinctive blend of military discipline, tech-savvy skills, and a passion for fostering genuine relationships. After enlisting in the United States Marine Corps at the age of 17, Antionette honed her leadership and time management abilities, which have become cornerstones of her successful career in property management.

Transitioning from tech sales and software engineering, Antionette found her true calling in the multifamily property sector. Now, as a proud member of the National Apartment Association, she is committed to humanizing the leasing process. Her philosophy centers on treating every client as an individual rather than a mere transaction. This genuine approach has allowed her to build lasting relationships with prospective residents, empowering them to find a home that resonates with their lifestyle and aspirations.

“Dallas strikes a balance that few cities can,” Antionette explains. “It offers abundant opportunities and a thriving professional landscape, while also maintaining a community-centered pace of life. This makes it an ideal place to grow, settle, and call home.” Her insight into the local market, combined with her hands-on experience in Class A multifamily housing, positions her as a knowledgeable resource for those seeking their next residence.

Antionette’s success can be attributed to her unwavering commitment to four guiding principles: honesty, integrity, consistency, and a profound passion for helping others. These values not only shape her professional interactions but also reflect her dedication to serving the Dallas community. Antionette believes that when you prioritize the needs of your clients, you elevate the entire leasing experience.

With her sharp sales instincts and a client-first mindset, Antionette Van continues to redefine what it means to be a leasing professional. Her military-forged work ethic, combined with her natural ability to connect with people, makes her an invaluable asset to anyone searching for more than just an apartment; she helps them find a true home.
