Doctorate-Prepared Psychiatric Mental Health Nurse Practitioner and Founder of Genoly Caring Center Continues Expanding Access to Personalized Mental Health Services

Burlington Township, New Jersey May 14, 2026 (Issuewire.com) - Chioma Obiukwu, DNP, APN, PMHNP-BC, is a dedicated Psychiatric Healthcare Provider and the Founder of Genoly Caring Center in Hamilton, New Jersey, where she delivers comprehensive, patient-centered mental health care through both telehealth and in-office services. With nearly 25 years of nursing experience and close to a decade specializing in psychiatric mental health, Dr. Obiukwu is recognized for her compassionate, evidence-based, and holistic approach to treating patients across the lifespan.

Dr. Obiukwu began her healthcare career as a registered nurse, spending approximately 15 years working in medical-surgical, telemetry, and orthopedic units. Her extensive bedside experience gave her a strong clinical foundation and a deep understanding of patient care before she discovered her passion for psychiatry and mental health treatment. Motivated by a desire to help individuals navigate emotional and psychological challenges, she pursued advanced education and specialized training in psychiatric nursing.

Today, as a doctorate-prepared Psychiatric Mental Health Nurse Practitioner, Dr. Obiukwu provides care for individuals facing anxiety, depression, mood disorders, panic-related conditions, and other psychiatric illnesses. Her treatment philosophy integrates medication management with supportive counseling, allowing her to address both the clinical and emotional needs of her patients. She believes in creating a safe, supportive environment where individuals feel heard, respected, and empowered throughout their mental health journey.

In 2018, Dr. Obiukwu founded Genoly Caring Center with the mission of increasing access to quality psychiatric services while offering flexible and individualized treatment options. Through her private practice, she performs comprehensive psychiatric evaluations, develops personalized treatment plans, and emphasizes preventative mental health education designed to promote long-term wellness and stability.

In addition to her private practice work, Dr. Obiukwu has also provided inpatient family psychiatry services through Jefferson Hospital, collaborating closely with interdisciplinary healthcare teams to support patient recovery and continuity of care. Her diverse clinical experience across hospital and outpatient settings has enabled her to serve a wide range of patient populations with professionalism and empathy.

Dr. Obiukwu earned her Bachelor of Science in Nursing from Fairleigh Dickinson University and later completed her Doctor of Nursing Practice Degree at Rutgers University. Throughout her career, she has remained deeply committed to education and mentorship, precepting and training nurses and nurse practitioners while advocating for greater access to mental health services within underserved communities.

During and after the COVID-19 pandemic, Dr. Obiukwu witnessed a significant rise in mental health concerns related to isolation, grief, anxiety, and emotional stress. Her practice experienced increased demand as she worked tirelessly to help patients manage these challenges with compassion and clinical expertise.

Above all, Dr. Chioma Obiukwu remains committed to providing empathetic, patient-centered psychiatric care that supports healing, resilience, and overall well-being for every individual she serves.
