Introducing expanded emergency services and proactive leak detection solutions designed to minimize damage and reduce long-term costs.

Denver, Colorado May 1, 2026 (IssueWire.com) - Colorado Cleanup Services (CCS), a leading provider of emergency mitigation and restoration services, today announced plans to expand its rapid-response program across the Front Range, reinforcing its commitment to faster response times, certified expertise, and dependable service when property owners need it most.

The upcoming expansion is designed to strengthen CCS's ability to serve homeowners, property managers, builders, and commercial clients facing water damage, mold concerns, and other unexpected property losses. The program will include increased crew availability, enhanced dispatch capabilities, and advanced drying and mitigation technology to improve efficiency and outcomes on every job.

"Based on the losses we see every day in restoration, early detection and rapid response are everything," said Randy Johansen, Chief of Operations at Colorado Cleanup Services. "Our goal is simple — protect properties, minimize damage, and be the team people can rely on when situations become urgent."

As part of this initiative, CCS will continue operating with IICRC-certified technicians, ensuring all mitigation and restoration work meets the highest industry standards. The company is also placing a stronger focus on proactive solutions, helping clients reduce long-term damage through early identification of moisture issues and leak risks.

Colorado Cleanup Services has built a reputation across the Denver Metro and surrounding areas for responsive service, clear communication, and quality workmanship. This upcoming expansion positions CCS to scale those capabilities while maintaining the same level of care and attention that has made them a trusted partner in the restoration industry.

Property owners and managers experiencing water damage or other emergencies are encouraged to act quickly to prevent further loss. CCS currently provides 24/7 emergency services and works directly with insurance providers to streamline the restoration process.
