

From Los Angeles to Cannes: Andrew Tate Continues to Draw Global Attention

Cannes, Alpes-Maritimes May 26, 2026 (IssueWire.com) - Andrew Tate has returned to Dubai following a high-profile trip across the United States, where the influencer and former kickboxing world champion attracted significant public attention during visits throughout April and May to Los Angeles, Miami, and New York.

Throughout the trip, videos and photographs of Tate meeting supporters circulated widely across social media, with fans regularly approaching him for selfies in Beverly Hills and Miami.

The visit also coincided with renewed attention surrounding Tate internationally after his recent Biohack Yourself Magazine cover was spotted during the Cannes Film Festival as part of the sHEALed documentary premiere by Biohack Media, a project focused on women's health and personal recovery stories.

Images shared online from the event showed Tate's magazine cover visible among promotional material alongside the worldwide premiere of the documentary, sparking discussion online due to the contrast between Tate's often controversial public image and the themes explored within the project.

Sources close to Tate say he enjoyed his time in the United States and spent much of the trip meeting creators, entrepreneurs and business contacts while continuing to explore opportunities within media, property and entertainment.

Andrew Tate said:

“America was incredible. The support everywhere I and Tristan went was unreal, and we appreciate everybody who came out to see me. But Dubai is still one of the greatest places on earth, so I’ve decided to come back for a bit”

A spokesperson for Tate added:

“Andrew’s profile continues to generate attention globally, whether through public appearances, media coverage, or social media. The reaction during his US trip was overwhelmingly positive, and he is looking forward to several upcoming projects internationally.”

Tate has frequently spoken positively about Dubai in recent years, often describing the city as a natural environment for ambitious entrepreneurs and international business. He has also spoken against those who fled Dubai during the US Iran conflict, stating Dubai is still extremely safe.

Despite continued controversy surrounding him, Tate remains one of the most widely discussed personalities on the internet, with his content and appearances continuing to generate major engagement across social media platforms.
