After expanding into more than 30 Hywaze-affiliated smoke shops across Central Florida, Get The Four Elements is preparing for its next phase of growth with its numbered first-edition release and continued creator collaborations online.

Melbourne, Florida May 9, 2026 (Issuewire.com) - After expanding into more than 30 Hywaze-affiliated smoke shops across Central Florida, Florida startup Get The Four Elements is preparing for its next phase of growth as interest surrounding the company's gravity-powered setup continues building online and in retail locations.

The brand, known for its collectible-style presentation and distinctive blue-label packaging, has recently been appearing in stores throughout areas including Orlando, the Space Coast, and Melbourne.

Now, the company says Miami is next.

Get The Four Elements combines a glass bottle design with a gravity-powered fill system capable of producing up to 1.5L inside the chamber. The startup has focused heavily on presentation, giftable packaging, and visual appeal as social media creators begin showcasing the product online.

As part of its current rollout, the company also released a numbered first-edition series consisting of 1,000 individually marked units. Each setup includes an artifact card numbered from 1 to 1,000, giving the launch a collectible angle rarely seen in the smoke shop category.

"We wanted the first release to feel like something people remember owning," said owner and CEO Pascal F. "A lot of products in this space look the same on shelves. We focused on making something people instantly recognize."

The company says creator collaborations and short-form video content are becoming a major part of its growth strategy moving forward, particularly as the product gains traction through visual demonstrations online.

With inventory already prepared and packaged as part of the brand's numbered first-edition release, Get The Four Elements plans to continue expanding distribution throughout Florida while building stronger online visibility through content creators, affiliate partnerships, and direct-to-consumer sales.
