

Here Comes the Tutu Queen: The Book That's Moving Women, Girls, and Families to Tears — in the Best Way

Bestselling children's author Carylee "The Tutu Queen" Carrington releases her 5th children's book — a powerful story of confidence, representation, and crowning the girl within.

Gainesville, Virginia May 12, 2026 (IssueWire.com) - Children's author, entrepreneur, and literacy advocate Carylee "The Tutu Queen" Carrington has released her fifth children's book, Here Comes the Tutu Queen, and the response from families, educators, and communities across the country has been nothing short of extraordinary. The book, which celebrates confidence, courage, and the power of a crown, is already turning heads and opening hearts, among readers of every age.

Written for young girls yet resonating far beyond its intended audience, Here Comes the Tutu Queen is a vivid, joyful story that affirms every girl's right to stand tall, lead with grace, and know the full measure of her worth. With language that dances off the page and characters that feel like family, Carrington has crafted a book that reminds readers, young and old, that confidence is not something you earn. It is something you wear.

"I didn't know this would be a book that I needed, and I'm an adult."

— Shelly, Educator

That sentiment is echoed by readers throughout the community. The book has found its way into bedrooms, classrooms, Girl Scout troops, and living rooms, proving that the message of Here Comes the Tutu Queen transcends age. Parents report that their daughters are not just reading it, they are living it.

“My daughter Abby requests this book every night.”

— Eric, Father

Carrington, a Northern Virginia-based author, educator, and founder of the Read With Carylee Book Club and the Children’s Author Alliance, is no stranger to making an impact on young readers. Her previous works, Everyone, Just Like Me, Pretty Hair, Maya Sings Country, and You Name It, Gram Made It!, have earned her a dedicated following of families who see their children’s lives reflected on her pages. Her work has been featured on Living Local DMV on WDC50, and she has delivered workshops in partnership with Girl Scouts of America, including her newly launched national Courageous & Strong Daisy Petal workshop.

With Here Comes the Tutu Queen, Carrington delivers her most personal and powerful work yet, a love letter to every girl who has ever doubted herself, and a declaration to the world that she is, and has always been, royalty.
