The Story of the Ice Age Floods of Glacial Lake Missoula

Peter B. Lewis

Seattle, Washington May 8, 2026 (IssueWire.com) - Pacific Northwest author and storyteller Peter B. Lewis is known for writing children's books that combine vivid storytelling with real-world science and scientific events, and his latest book offers his most exciting adventure for young readers yet, with the prehistoric tale “Big Water is Coming!”

Available now from major booksellers and AUDISEE Media, “Big Water is Coming!” tells the fact-based story of how, fifteen thousand years ago as the Earth was warming and the ice was melting, many prehistoric animals found themselves facing the “big water” of one of the greatest floods the world has ever known.

Inspired by the true story of the Ice Age Floods from Glacial Lake Missoula, the book is a richly illustrated adventure that brings prehistoric animals and dramatic landscapes to life, told through the eyes of creatures who would have lived it in a journey of courage, survival, and discovery. “Big Water is Coming!” provides an exciting, page-turning introduction to one of Earth’s greatest geologic events in the tale of Condo, Horse, Antelope, Saber-tooth Cat, and other prehistoric animals as they join together in a race to escape the floods, and it’s perfect for young science lovers and budding geologists of all ages!

“Big Water is Coming!” is available now, in hardcover and paperback, from Amazon, Barnes & Noble, Bookshop.org, and via Lewis’s website at www.PeterBStories.com. The book is also available for sale at the Ice Age Floods Institute, at <https://iafi.org/product/the-big-water-is-coming/>.

“It’s always been important to me to tell stories that are based in fact and science,” comments author Peter B. Lewis. “And ‘Big Water is Coming!’ was the chance to tell a story about one of my favorite periods in Earth’s history, about the great floods that shaped so much of the Pacific Northwest region we see around us today.”
