

Rado DiaStar Original Oman Edition

Inspired by timeless architecture, defined by Rado

Masqat, Oman May 31, 2026 (Issuewire.com) - The skyline of Muscat embodies a vision of cultural pride, precision, and lasting craftsmanship – values deeply rooted in Omani identity and profoundly aligned with Rado’s design philosophy and expressed exquisitely in the new Rado DiaStar Original Oman Edition watches.

Purity, Balance and Timelessness

These new timepieces are inspired by timeless architecture that distinguishes Oman’s capital city. At the heart of their design is a refined balance between classical Middle Eastern geometry and the Sultanate’s contemporary sense of elegance and harmony. Clean lines, symmetry, and carefully measured surfaces create an atmosphere of calm confidence, where form and ornament exist in perfect equilibrium. This disciplined approach to design mirrors the principles of Rado, where attention to detail long ago established itself as the brand’s foundation of enduring beauty. Monumental yet serene, the design elements intersect at a point where Swiss precision meets the golden heritage of Oman. These watches command attention through purity of form: their precise lines and harmonious proportions create a sense of continuity and balance, while the play of light across every surface brings subtle depth and variation throughout the day. Like the land that inspired them, each timepiece is an expression of control, clarity, and timeless elegance – values that have always been essential parts of Rado’s design language.

Watches worthy of a unique landscape

The Rado DiaStar Original Oman Edition watches take their design inspiration from Oman's architectural heritage. Produced in four distinct models, the collection is available in silver or golden tones, each offered in two sizes: 30mm designed for slimmer wrists, and 38mm, expressing a bolder character. The dial continues the celebration of Oman's artistry, cultural heritage and topography. Curves, proportions and refined detailing translate architectural grandeur into a wearable expression. The warm sandstone tone reflects the overall aesthetic of local architecture, while the lower dial level features a subtle copper-to-gold gradient, adding depth and sophistication to the composition. The larger size is fitted with applied indices, whereas the smaller size uses crystals to mark the hours, offering two different interpretations of the design. From a technical perspective, the DiaStar Original Oman Edition is driven by the same discipline and precision that define its design. The larger models are powered by the Rado calibre R764, an automatic movement with three hands and a day-date display at 6 o'clock. With an impressive 80-hour power reserve, it delivers precision, reliability and confidence for everyday wear. The smaller sizes are equipped with the Rado calibre R586, featuring a date display and a 48-hour power reserve, offering a perfectly balanced blend of performance and elegance. The case construction balances robustness with refinement. Framed by a polished Ceramos™ bezel – declined in platinum or yellow gold-coloured finishes – the design is paired with a polished stainless steel middle case and topped by a vertically faceted sapphire crystal with anti-reflective coating on the inside. Turning the watch reveals a stainless steel case back adorned with a special laser engraving reading "OMAN EDITION", enriched by architectural inspiration and a play of multiple brushed effects that add texture and depth. Completing the piece, a polished stainless steel bracelet with brushed middle links ensures a sophisticated contrast, while Rado's EasyClip system and polished three-fold clasp offer comfort, adaptability and effortless wearability. More than a timepiece, the DiaStar Original Oman Edition is a dialogue between architecture and watchmaking and, like the Sultanate of Oman itself, is compellingly positioned at the intersection of place and time. It transforms Oman's most celebrated landmarks into expressions of balance, durability, and modern elegance. In doing so, it connects the measured passage of time with a legacy of craftsmanship that transcends generations – celebrating timeless beauty and Omani design excellence through every detail.

Rado x Oman

Oman's history is a rich and fascinating one. Rado's own meaningful connection with the Sultanate dates back to 1970, a pivotal year that marked the beginning of Oman's modern era. As Oman moved forward through a period of modernisation and economic growth, Rado established a strong and lasting presence by partnering with progressive local representatives. From the mid-1970s, the Middle East became a key strategic region for the brand, with Oman quickly emerging as an important market. The early 1980s marked a phase of strong momentum, supported by iconic collections such as the DiaStar Original, confirming Rado's ability to introduce designs that resonated with Omani customers and demonstrating both adaptability and a deep connection with the local market. In recent years, Rado has continued to strengthen its presence across the Middle East and looks ahead with confidence to deepening its long-standing relationship with Oman. Reconnecting with long-time Rado enthusiasts while welcoming new audiences, the Swiss watchmaker is proud to share its spirit of innovation, design excellence, and material mastery with a new generation. Once again, Omani watch lovers are invited to Feel the difference – and to rediscover why Rado remains the Master of Materials.
