

Viking Bags Unveils 80L Odyssey Luggage System for High-Capacity ADV Touring

The rack-free, Odyssey ADV luggage system brings 80 liters of organized, weather-sealed storage to a wide range of adventure motorcycles, designed for multi-day ADV Touring.

Los Angeles, California May 14, 2026 (Issuewire.com) - Viking Bags, a manufacturer of motorcycle luggage, ADV luggage bags, and aftermarket parts, has launched the Odyssey 80L Adventure Touring Luggage System, a complete, rack-free setup designed for ADV riders who need high-volume storage without the added cost or weight of hard panniers. The system is compatible with a broad range of adventure motorcycles and brings together side dry bags, a tail pack, and a tent pole bag into a cohesive kit.

For riders who have long searched for a luggage setup that works without a pannier rack, the Odyssey 80L fills that gap. The harness mounts directly to the bike through a strap-based system with legs that adjust in angle, allowing the kit to sit flush on both slim enduro machines and larger, full-size ADV platforms. The outer shell is built from ballistic nylon, a material proven on rough terrain for its resistance to abrasion and hard use.

The full kit includes two 25-liter roll-top dry bags that slide into side holsters on the harness, a 22-liter tail pack, and a tent pole dry bag built for those who camp along the route. All dry bags in the kit are fully waterproof. The 22-liter tail pack doubles as an airline cabin bag or a day pack, with a roll-top seal, an outer zip pocket, and backpack straps that stow out of sight when not in use.

MOLLE webbing on the top flap lets riders attach small pouches or tools without opening the main bag. A clear, detachable map pocket sits just below it, and two zip pockets on the bottom flap keep small items at hand. A heat shield is also part of the kit, protecting the harness on bikes with high-mounted exhaust systems.
