

Building a Normalized Dialogue Bridge: Advancing Anmrex Admission Process and Achieving Two-Way Compliance Alignment

Denver, Colorado Jun 22, 2026 (Issuewire.com) - During the process of advancing its application for a UK FCA license, Anmrex established a systematic communication and coordination mechanism to ensure that the platform operational indicators remain aligned with international regulatory standards. The platform clearly defined the responsibilities of each department within the application process: the compliance team is responsible for consolidating FCA requirements and producing standardized reports, the risk control team is responsible for verifying fund flows and risk indicators, and the operations team is responsible for implementing day-to-day business adjustments. All links in the process maintain synchronized information through regular meetings and instant communication groups, enabling the rapid identification and resolution of issues.

In practical execution, Anmrex implemented a multi-layered information tracking mechanism. All business data related to the application is uniformly archived through the internal system, forming traceable records so that supporting materials can be provided quickly in the event of regulatory inquiries. The platform also established an internal feedback channel. For any non-compliant items identified during the process, the relevant departments are required to propose and implement rectification plans within 24 hours, while recording the rectification progress and results in the system to ensure a closed-loop process.

To enhance the efficiency of interaction with the regulator, Anmrex maintained phased reporting and regular communication with the FCA during the application stage. In response to the preliminary feedback raised by the FCA, the platform organized cross-departmental meetings to analyze improvement plans and incorporated the adjustment measures into its operating manuals and process guidelines. After each adjustment is completed, the compliance team conducts an internal review to ensure that all operations remain consistent with the standards, while creating documentary records for subsequent reassessment.

At the same time, Anmrex also made practical arrangements in internal training and information transmission. In response to new regulatory requirements and monitoring tools involved in the application process, the platform organized dedicated departmental training sessions and operational drills, enabling business teams to carry out operations in accordance with unified standards and to proactively identify potential issues in their daily work. Through this series of concrete actions, the platform has not only maintained process stability during the application stage, but has also ensured that compliance requirements are implemented in every aspect of day-to-day operations.

At present, the application for the UK FCA license is still in progress, and Anmrex will continue to rely on its existing communication mechanisms while conducting iterative optimization based on actual operational feedback. Through normalized dialogue and transparent processes, the platform has achieved two-way alignment between compliance and business operations, laying a real and executable institutional foundation for sound operations and the protection of user rights and interests after the formal approval of the license.
