Throughout her extensive career, Ms. Butler has developed deep expertise in utilization management and clinical review, including medical necessity determinations, care coordination, and healthcare compliance. She currently serves as a Utilization Management Nurse with Elevance Health, where she evaluates clinical cases using established evidence-based guidelines, collaborates with interdisciplinary teams, and supports ongoing quality improvement initiatives designed to enhance patient outcomes and system efficiency.

In addition to her core responsibilities, Ms. Butler has also served as a Subject Matter Expert, where she contributes to staff education, onboarding programs, and complex case resolution. Ms. Butler describes the evolving nature of healthcare as one of the most meaningful aspects of her profession. She emphasizes that medicine is continuously changing, requiring ongoing learning, adaptability, and engagement. This constant evolution, she notes, keeps her motivated and allows her to bring the most current knowledge and best practices to her work in patient care and utilization review.

Her clinical and leadership experience also includes serving as Clinic Manager at Nucci Medical Center, where she oversaw daily operations, coordinated patient services, and supported staff performance in a fast-paced clinical environment. Additionally, she has worked as a Licensed Practical Nurse Case Manager supporting military medical evaluation and discharge planning, ensuring continuity of care for service members transitioning through complex healthcare processes.

Earlier in her career, Ms. Butler gained hands-on clinical experience in hospital and rehabilitation settings, where she specialized in wound care, medical-surgical nursing, and the management of patients with chronic and complex medical conditions. These foundational roles helped shape her comprehensive understanding of patient care across multiple levels of the healthcare system.

Beyond her clinical work, Ms. Butler is the Founder and Executive Director of Enlightened Florida, a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization dedicated to improving community health through education, wellness programming, and chronic disease prevention. Through this organization, she leads initiatives including health fairs, educational workshops, scholarship programs, and large-scale community wellness events such as the Conquer Cancer Event and the Radiance of Wellness Gala. These programs are designed to increase health awareness, improve access to resources, and promote long-term wellness in underserved communities.

Ms. Butler launched Enlightened Florida in late 2024, driven by her nursing background and passion for preventive care. She continues to divide her professional focus between her role at Elevance Health and her nonprofit leadership work. Her long-term vision is to expand Enlightened Florida from a local initiative into a nationally recognized organization over the next five years, with a focus on promoting healthy lifestyles and reducing health disparities.

“I strongly believe that healthy living encompasses everyone and that maintaining good health is foundational to everything else we do,” she has shared in describing her mission and motivation.
