Los Angeles, California Jun 10, 2026 (IssueWire.com) - Dex System, the independent imprint operating through the Cipher Grid digital hub, announces full availability of the Rane Corvus Sync Series — four interconnected works of speculative fiction that together form one of the most distinctive and architecturally ambitious catalogs in independent publishing today.

The series begins with Sovereign Sync, in which Corvus lays the foundation for a world where sovereignty, signal, and systems of control are inextricably bound — and where the ability to read the underlying architecture of power is the difference between agency and obsolescence. Sovereign Sync II: The Author Protocol deepens that world, pushing its central tensions to the breaking point as the rules governing authorship, identity, and institutional control are thrown into question. What does it mean to be the author of your own story when the protocol has already been written for you?

Silicon Cross: 200 Centuries of Signal pulls back to the longest possible view — two hundred centuries of information, transmission, and the invisible systems that have always shaped human civilization — while The Node Seven Sync returns to the intimate and immediate, tracing the consequences of a world in which network nodes carry more authority than nations, and where the sync itself may be the last form of coherence left standing.

Read together, the four volumes constitute a sustained, rigorous, and viscerally engaging inquiry into the nature of systems — how they are built, how they fail, how they are inherited, and how they might be broken or remade. Corvus writes with the clarity of someone who has mapped the terrain from the inside.

"Rane Corvus is doing something rare in speculative fiction," said a spokesperson for Dex System. "Every book in the Sync Series stands alone, but read in sequence they build something you can't unsee — a complete theory of how power actually moves, and what it costs to resist it."
