Experienced Registered Nurse Combines Clinical Excellence, Education Background, and Patient Advocacy to Improve Health Outcomes Across Diverse Communities

Bronx, New York Jun 4, 2026 (IssueWire.com) - Eunice Ogbennaya, RN, MSN, is a compassionate and highly experienced Registered Nurse with more than 21 years of dedication to patient care and clinical excellence. She currently serves in the medical-surgical unit at Jacobi Medical Center in the Bronx, New York, where she provides comprehensive, high-quality care to a diverse and complex patient population.

Throughout her career, Eunice has demonstrated a strong commitment to patient advocacy, education, and improving health outcomes through individualized, compassionate care. She is widely recognized for her ability to connect with patients, build trust, and ensure that each individual understands their condition and treatment plan.

Eunice earned her Nursing Degree from Eastwick College and later completed her Master of Science in Nursing at Ramapo College. Prior to entering the nursing profession, she built a strong academic foundation in education, earning a Bachelor of Science in Education with a focus on physics and teaching in both Nigeria and the United States. This unique combination of education and healthcare experience continues to shape her approach to nursing, allowing her to integrate teaching principles into patient care.

Her philosophy emphasizes that patient education is a critical component of healing. By helping individuals understand their health conditions and treatment options, she empowers them to take an active role in their recovery and long-term wellness.

In addition to her hospital-based clinical work, Eunice has served as a clinical instructor, mentoring and guiding future nurses as they enter the profession. She is also actively involved in professional organizations, including the Nigerian Nurses Association, where she continues to contribute to the advancement of nursing practice and community engagement. Her experience also extends into long-term care settings, including her work at Split Rock Nursing Home, where she supported elderly and vulnerable populations.

Across all aspects of her career, Eunice remains committed to meeting patients where they are and supporting them through both medical treatment and emotional encouragement.

“I love to see people move on and their faces smiling,” Eunice said. “What I enjoy most is understanding where the person is coming from, then moving them from where they are to where they’re supposed to be. When I bring you up from the level where you are to the level you’re supposed to be, I see the ambition rise. Everybody’s smart in their own way. I don’t have to put you down. The bottom line is for you to understand what you’re supposed to do, and then we move on together.”

Through her dedication to compassionate care and patient education, Eunice Ogbennaya continues to make a meaningful impact on the lives of her patients and the broader healthcare community in New York.
